PLAN TO DRAFT TWO MILLIONS FOR WAR WORK

Manpower Commissioners See One Out of Every Three Serving Nation.

WOULD USE HOUSEWIVES

Estimated 13,000,000 Needed By Industries; 8,000,000 Would Shift Jobs.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — More than 2,000,000 housewives, young men and women and older persons normally not considered a part of the nation's industrial forces will be "drafted" for war work during the next 12 months under plans being made today by President Roosevelt's new manpower commission.

Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the new war agency, estimated that 13,000,000 workers would be needed for war production jobs during the next 12 months. This means that about one out of every three men of the 40,000,000 between the ages of 18 and 64, inclusive, will either be forced to shift to war work or be inducted in the armed forces.

Of the 13,000,000, approximately 2,500,000 will be obtained from workers now in industry being converted to war production. Approximately 2,000,000 more will be obtained from the ranks of the unemployed, and another 500,000 from so-called self-employed persons whose businesses are forced to fold up because of shortages.

Approximately 8,000,000 others will be shifted from present peacetime jobs to war jobs. McNutt estimated that out of the 13,000,000 total, about 2,000,000 men would be called into the armed forces. That still will leave war industries short of about 2,000,000 workers. Officials of the manpower commission declared that they expected to get the 2,000,000 from housewives, youths, young girls and retired and older workers not normally considered as part of the labor supply market.

Women, McNutt said, will be asked to register voluntarily.

McNutt indicated that he may ask for changes in the draft law to allow group deferments of men by industries or by localities if labor shortages exist in certain areas. Congress specifically banned group deferments when it enacted the selective service act to prevent a recurrence of the scandals of World war I when men allegedly obtained and even bought jobs in shipyards to dodge the draft.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of national draft headquarters, also has apposed group deferments by occupation, saying that the matter of deferments should be handled on the basis of individual cases. As a result, McNutt's statements about deferments caused a sensation in war agency circles in Washington.

VOW REVENGE

Fighters Angered Over First Girl Casualty In Armed Forces.

LONDON —(INS)— Grim crews of Britain's south coastal anti-aircraft batteries today vowed revenge on the German Luftwaffe for the death of 18-year-old Private Nora Caveney, the first girl to be killed in action with the British armed services.

She was guiding the anti-aircraft batteries in firing their second slavo at the Nazi war birds when a bomb fell nearby and a splinter fatally injured her. It was her first engagement with the enemy.

Be Downtown at 7:30 A.M. Tomorrow for Another Big Send-Off Party for Draftees; Two Others on This Week

Mansfield, which turned out 5,000 strong four weeks ago today for the first event of its kind in World war 2, was called upon again today to bid a group of its sons farewell and Godspeed tomorrow as they depart for Uncle Sam's service.

Plans for the send-off, first of three to be staged on successive days this week, were announced today by Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory Civic Committee. He called upon Mansfielders to assemble on Park avenue west between Walnut and Mulberry streets at 7:30 a. m. to take part in the send-off.

Tomorrow's group, representing Selective Service Board 1, will find three buses chartered for the trip to an army induction center. The board 2 delegation will depart Thursday morning, and the contingent from board 3 on Friday.

Details for the send-off demonstrations are like those for the first one on March 24, with the exception, according to Saltzgaber, that special arrangements have been made to avoid confusion and crowding.

At the three send-offs this week, the buses which will carry the selectees to the first stop in their trip to the army, will be parked in the middle of the street, not along the curb. A special section will be roped off around each bus, and an aisle cleared so that the selectees themselves won't have difficulty in getting to the conveyances.

The time for each send-off is 7:30 a. m. A band will be present to play on each occasion, adding to the military spirit of the occasion.

Further than that it's up to the residents of Mansfield and the rest of Richland county. They can demonstrate that they'll turn out in large numbers for these and future send-

DEFENSE FUND OK'ED, COUNTY MAPS PROGRAM

State Says Entire $18,576 Must Be Spent For Civic Defense Activity.

Following the state board of control's speedy approval of Gov. John W. Bricker's request for a $2,000,000 allocation of excess poor relief funds to civilian defense, Richland county officials today awaited arrival of a check for $18,576, representing this county's share of the money.

The state auditor's department at Columbus was to begin mailing out the checks today to county budget commissions, which will, in turn, distribute them locally on the basis of need.

The money may be spent in any manner desired by local defense councils, so long as it is for some form of defense activity. With the checks, the auditor was instructed by the state board of control to include a statement advising that this remittance is the only one to be made.

Ray Hout, chairman of the new county civilian defense council, said he would await arrival of the funds and official certification of his committee's appointment before setting a date for a meeting to outline further plans.

G. E. Kalbfleisch, Mansfield chairman of civilian defense, announced today that an office and clearing-house for information on civilian defense will be established in office space on the third floor of the Municipal Building. The defense council here has been meeting at the American Legion home, but it has not had a regular office to which all requests for information could be referred.

Bernard Hardy, Red Cross first aid director, reported today that the material collected in last week's drive by the medical division of the civilian defense council—enough to equip

DIES AT VICHY

Wife of Ambassador Leahy Succumbs to Illness.

VICHY—(INS)—Mrs. William D. Leahy, wife of the American ambassador to the French government at Vichy, died today.

The ambassador's wife had been in ill health for some time and had undergone an operation recently.

When notified to return to Washington for consultation following the return of Pierre Laval to the Vichy government last week, Admiral Leahy requested permission to delay his trip until his wife recuperated sufficiently to accompany him. The request was granted.

Mrs. Leahy was a member of the Sulgrave club, a women's organization in Washington. In 1939 she was a member of the advisory committee to the New York worlds' fair.

WAR SALARIES LIMIT URGED

Sen. Pepper Proposes Top of $25,000 For Executives of Arms Plants.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Claude Pepper, D., Fla., today proposed that the annual salaries of war plant executives be limited to $25,000 and promised to offer such an amendment to the next labor bill considered.

Pepper said it was inconsistent to permit an airplane factory executive to get $150,000 a year while seeking to eliminate overtime pay for his employes.

"Let's freeze salaries and bonuses before we freeze wages," he said, "and cut them down before we freeze them. We want effective control of profits and executive salaries and bonuses as well as wages."

Referring to labor's opposition to wage freezing, he said he was "not afraid to face labor provided I know that I have been just as exacting with every other group."

Pepper often has been an advance proponent of ideas later adopted by the administration. But on the labor issue he recently split with the administration, favoring a removal of the wage-hour law provision which compels payment of overtime for hours in excess of 40 per week.

There will be no chance for Pepper to introduce his salary ceiling plan until next week because the senate has postponed consideration of labor legislation until then. That decision was made yesterday after it was learned that President Roosevelt would send a message to congress then and make a radio speech outlining his plans for combating the rising cost of living. The president also will discuss the wage and hours problem.

Franco Says Spain To Help Fight Reds If Needed.

MADRID —(U.P.)— Generalissimo Francisco Franco has promised that Spain will aid in the fight against Russia with 1,000,000 men if necessary, Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner was quoted as saying today in an interview with a Danish newspaperman.

"Most urgent in the interests of the entire world is the fact that it must be saved from Bolshevism," he said. "Franco said at Seville that in spite of our difficulties, if the great German bulwark cannot withstand the tremendous peril in Russia, Spain will aid not with 15,000 but with 1,000,000 men."

The interview was published locally.

Working under the slogan, "Forward March With Music," given them by the association president, Albert D. Arnold, at the complimentary workers' dinner Monday night in Grace Episcopal church, the campaign solicitors will contact hundreds of prospective memberships before the campaign ends Saturday at 8 p. m.

Preliminary reports show that more membership renewals have been received thus far than there were last year for the same period and indications point to a substantial increase in new members, ac-

Kenyon Prexy To Address 310 Grads At June Commencement

The Mansfield board of education last night approved 310 Senior high school pupils for graduation at commencement exercises Thursday evening, June 4, in Stadium field.

The class, which includes 161 girls and 149 boys, is much larger than the 1941 class of 279 and one of the largest in the school's history.

In approving the seniors for graduation, the board authorized Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller, to withhold the diploma of any pupil who fails to meet the requirements between now and the time of graduation.

PICK STATIONS FOR NEW DRAFT REGISTRATIONS

Boards List 22 Places Where Men Between 45 and 65 Will Enroll Starting Saturday.

Richland county's 7,500 men between the ages of 45 and 65 will register under the selective service during a three-day period starting next Saturday at 22 registration points throughout the county, draft board officials announced today.

All men in that age classification are to register—with the exception of retired regular Army or Navy officers and retired enlisted men. These groups are subject to recall for active duty.

This registration, fourth since passage of the present selective service act and second since start of the war, will give Uncle Sam a virtually complete inventory of his available manpower. It will give a record not only of men available for armed service, but for occupational service and other types of civilian duty during the war days ahead.

At every one of the 22 registration points, a draft board member will be on duty to direct volunteer workers in assisting registrants in filling out their cards.

The registration points will be open from 12 noon to 6 p. m. on Saturday and Sunday, and from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Monday.

Men of 45 to 65 may register at any point in their draft board's jurisdiction. Board 1, covering the portion of Mansfield west of Main street, has five registration points; board 2, for the city east of Main street, has eight; and Board 3, covering the remainder of the county, has nine.

The registration boards and the board representatives in charge, are as follows:

BANNED AGAIN

'Social Justice' Hit By New Postoffice Ruling.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The government slapped its second mailing ban on "Social Justice" today as Father Charles E. Coughlin assumed full responsibility for the publication.

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker ordered postmasters at Royal Oak, Mich., headquarters of the publication, and Chicago, where "Social Justice" is printed, to consider the April 20 issue as non-mailable under the 1917 espionage act. The justice department has accused it of seditious utterances.

Coughlin said in Detroit that he was solely responsible for the policies and contents of the magazine, although he transferred ownership to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coughlin of Royal Oak, in May, 1940. His parents have been subpoenaed by a special grand jury investigating Axis propaganda.

Berlin Implies China's Base For Attackers

Report Says Alerts Sounded Over Central And Western Nippon; Sharp Fighting Continues On Cebu, Panay; Jap Peace Offensive Hinted.

(By Associated Press)

New air-raid alarms were reported to have sounded in central and western Japan today even as the Japanese cabinet received details on the damage inflicted by American bombers in Saturday's spectacular assault on Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe.

A Berlin broadcast said the alarm sounded in the afternoon and was lifted in central Japan by an all-clear at 5 p. m., Japanese time (4 a. m., Eastern War Time).

Japan's west coast faces China, indicating that the planes may have come from the Chinese mainland. Imperial Tokyo headquarters said yesterday that some of the big U. S. bombers which took part in the raids Saturday had "escaped" to bases in China.

The German broadcast did not say whether any bombs were dropped.

In Tokyo, Japanese cabinet minister belittled the damage inflicted in Saturday's raids, asserting the transportation system was "hardly disturbed," that the postal service was fully resumed soon after the planes left, and that Japanese life was affected only in a few instances.

While Japan thus minimized the first aerial attack in her history, three days after the initial shock had worn off, Australia's Army Minister Francis M. Forde declared in Brisbane that "the war has turned in our favor" and that the approaching Allied offensive "will be a staggering spectacle."

"The day for it to be unleashed is not yet here," Forde said, "but it is not too far off."

Forde warned that a Japanese attempt to invade Australia may come within the next four weeks, declaring:

"To think the Japanese will concentrate on India and not come here would be foolishness. We must be prepared for the worst."

Signs of a possible Japanese "peace offensive" cropped up in a Tokyo broadcast quoting Toyohiko Kagawa, Japan's best-known Christian leader, as declaring:

"Prayers are being said daily for an early conclusion of the war and restoration of peace throughout the world."

In this connection, authoritative observers have forecast a Japanese peace drive as soon as she had conquered the territories desired in her "greater east Asia co-prosperity sphere."

With the rise of Allied offensive power, Japan may now feel ready to call quits.

Meanwhile, Chinese reports said the Japanese were speeding preparations for possible war against Russia, heavily reinforcing their garrisons in inner Mongolia, which borders Soviet Siberia west of Manchukuo.

On the Burma war front, a furious battle was reported raging around Yenangyaung, in the heart of Burma's ruined oil fields, as British tank-led infantry and a

EUROPE: U. S. Planes Join RAF Attacks; Russians Forge Ahead

(By Associated Press)

United States warplanes, now blasting the Axis on many fronts, are already being ferried to British operational bases to join in the RAF's great aerial offensive against the continent, London sources reported today.

At the same time, a British spokesman disclosed that Prime Minister Winston Churchill has approved a plan to organize a combined operations staff, linking Britain's army, navy and air force into a single gigantic combat team.

The move to coordinate the three British fighting services—perhaps as a prelude to an Allied invasion of Nazi-dominated Europe—closely followed conferences by Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, and Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's representative, with British military and political leaders.

London observers said they expected to see the red, white and blue insignia of U. S. army bombers in the sky any day now, and the London Daily Sketch declared:

"Soon at airdromes all over Britain there will be gathered the force of planes that will make this country the world's greatest air base . . . hundreds of United States aircraft—giant bombers, medium bombers and dive bombers—flown by American air crews."

Other developments:

Sea warfare—A Berlin radio broadcast asserted that more than 2,000,000 tons of shipping had been sunk by Axis submarines operating off the American Atlantic and Pacific coasts in the last three weeks. (Note: This figure is far in excess of losses disclosed by the United States.)

The broadcast said that 1,772,900 tons of British and American ships had been sunk off the Atlantic seaboard between Jan. 15

VICHY: Germans Execute 20 Hostages; Laval Goes To Paris

(By United Press)

VICHY, France—German military authorities have executed 20 more French hostages at St. Nazaire in reprisal for the recent British commando raid on the important submarine base there, it was made known today.

News of the executions was received here shortly after Chief of Government Pierre Laval left suddenly for Paris at 5 a. m. to contact the Germans on his collaborationist program.

Thirty hostages had been shot at Rouen yesterday in revenge for the derailing of a German troop train in which 44 German soldiers were killed.

The hostages, completely innocent of the bombing, were taken from a concentration camp at which Free French sympathizers and alleged "Communists" were held.

(London reported that the Germans intended to shoot 80 more innocent French patriots Thursday unless those responsible for the train wreck were arrested.

(Thirty-five hostages had been shot at Calais last week, and thus the total of new killings, in a German repression campaign, was brough to 55, with 80 more facing death.)

Laval left two hours before Admiral of the Fleet Jean Francois Darlan gave his first order of the day to the powerful French fleet which he still controls as commander in chief of the armed forces, responsible not to Laval but to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

It was believed that Laval on his return from Paris would make a public statement on foreign

Navy Takes Over Operation Of Three Warplane Factories

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The navy operated three plants of the Brewster Aeronautical corporation today under presidential order due to the White House said "dissatisfaction with the management."

Captain George C. Westervelt, construction corps, U. S. navy, retired, assumed control on orders of President Roosevelt late yesterday and Captain Samuel J. Zigler, U. S. N., acting on behalf of Westervelt, entered the Newark, N. J., plant and took charge, saying operations would continue under the present manager and his assistants.

The three plants are located at Long Island City, N. Y., Newark, and Johnsville, Pa.

Ralph M. Singer, president of the corporation, announced that the company would hold a press conference at the Long Island City plant today.

The government action came a few days after Senator Byrd (D., Va.) had named the Brewster company as one of the eight firms with naval contracts in which slowdowns had occurred, and after R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO) had visited the White House and later told reporters that a "large cross section of the management (of Brewster) are aliens."

Senator Byrd said it was reported that in several sections of the Long Island City plant "all of the employes, including the foremen, are enemy aliens."

The firm makes warplanes for the United States and Britain.

JAPAN GETS NEW AIR RAID SCARE IN TWO AREAS

Berlin Broadcast Implies That Attacking Planes Came From China Coast.

Chinese rifle regiment sought to annihilate isolated Japanese troops.

Chinese military dispatches said Chinese reinforcements had recaptured Yenangyaung, saving 7,000 encircled British troops and 100 supply trucks in the first Allied victory of the Burma campaign. Chinese troops drove the invaders three miles south of the oil town.

The Chinese reported they had killed 500 Japanese and lost only 100 in the Yenangyaung area, where British engineers had already blown up 6,000 oil wells to prevent them from falling into Japanese hands.

The Japanese troops cut off in the Yenangyaung sector were described as part of a force which drove into the oil fields last week, cutting off the British rearguard south of the fields.

British advices said the imperilled British rearguards had now rejoined British tank forces and with the help of Chinese reinforcements from the north were attempting to smash the Japanese.

Other key developments in the far Pacific:

PHILIPPINES — A bulletin from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's U. S. army headquarters in Australia reported sharp fighting continued on both Panay and Cebu islands, in the central Philippines, with the Japanese invaders carrying out a new landing at San Jose.

"The enemy continued intermittent shelling and bombing of Corregidor with negligible effect; enemy artillery action is abating," Gen. MacArthur reported.

A war department communique yesterday said the Japanese were rolling up their heaviest guns and were using dive-bombers in a fierce assault to dislodge the American-Filipino defenders of Corregidor island fortress, in Manila bay.

The navy announced that four American submarine commanders had been awarded Navy Crosses for daring raids in Japanese waters, including a rare clash in which an American submarine torpedoed and possibly sank a Japanese underseas craft.

The four commanders were credited with sinking six Japanese ships totalling 45,000 tons, raising the score to 36 Japanese ships sunk, 12 probably sunk and 11 damaged.

AUSTRALIA—U. S. Army headquarters reported that Allied warplanes made far-ranging attacks from Australian bases during the week-end, striking at the big Japanese base at Koepang, Dutch Timor; Rabaul, New Britain, and Salamaua, New Guinea.

Nine Japanese heavy bombers escorted by at least six fighters struck back with an attack on oft-bombed Port Moresby, advanced Allied base in New Guinea.

But the raiders were declared to have been dispersed by anti-aircraft fire and Allied fighter planes.

Chinese Save 7,000 Troops, 100 Trucks

CHUNGKING —(AP)— Chinese forces which recaptured the oil center of Yenangyaung saved 7,000 encircled British troops and 100 supply trucks in the first Allied victory in Burma, an army spokesman said today.

After rescuing the British, the Chinese fought with their Allies under British command and drove three miles south of Yenangyaung through the rubble of burned oil wells to which the torch had been applied.

Severe fighting with the Japanese still is in progress, the spokesman said.

The Chinese, commanded by U. S. Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, moved into the British sector at the request of their Allies' high command, the spokesman added. One Chinese battalion commander was killed leading his troops in the recapture of Yenangyaung.

The fury of the Burma fighting continued unabated throughout last week and fiercer battles are expected, the army spokesman said. The morale of the Chinese forces, who have fought for a month with glaring air inferiority, was said to be high.

Wavell Promises Help For India

(By United Press)

NEW DELHI, India—Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell told the Indian people in a broadcast today that the time is "not far distant" when Allied seapower will drive the Japanese from the Indian ocean and the Bay of Bengal.

He said that Allied land and air forces, which include U. S. planes, are growing steadily for India's defense but warned that the Japanese might attempt a landing somewhere along the Indian coast.

War Council Studies Allied Shipping

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The Pacific war council meets today and probably will consider the need for better use of United Nations shipping.

The council is scheduled to meet with President Roosevelt and it was assumed that some of the results of Hopkins' recent mission to Great Britain with Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, would be studied.

"The tough business of making war" involves more efficient use of Allied shipping and the placement of many more women in American war industries, Hopkins told reporters yesterday.

Hopkins' views, particularly concerning shipping, coincided with official advises that shipment of war aid to the Soviet Union is increasing steadily. April exports were expected to far surpass those of any previous month. The amount of aid sent to Russia in March was two and a half times as great as that sent in February from this country.

Report Japs Given Vichy Merchant Ships

LONDON —(U.P.)— Free French diplomatic sources said today they had confirmed that the Vichy government had turned over to Japan 60,000 tons of merchant shipping in French Indo-China for use against the United States and Allied Nations.

They said the arrangement had been completed five or six weeks ago, about the time French supplies were going to German forces in Libya, adjoining French Tunisia in North Africa, for use against the British.

(The United States state department last night made known that it had sent a strongly worded protest to Vichy concerning reports that the French had put several merchantmen at Japan's disposal in Indo-China.)

It was pointed out that the reported transfer of Vichy merchant ships in French Indo-China was maneuvered before Pierre Laval took office.

Six Japs Needed As Chick Experts Freed by British

LONDON—(INS)—Because their work will save hundreds of tons of chicken food for Britain annually, six Japanese chicken experts, interned as enemy aliens last December, are today free men.

These six Japanese were released by the British authorities on the understanding that they will carry on their work—determining the sex of newly-hatched chickens—by a secret method known only to about 30 other people in the country.

Application for the release of the Japanese experts was made to Herbert Morrison, British home secretary, by both the British ministry of agriculture and the National Poultry Council.

"The system of finding the sex of young chickens is a Japanese invention," Edward S. Hudson, general secretary of the National Poultry Council, told International News Service today, "and most of the English experts have been trained in Japan.

All the Japanese experts have lived in Britain for about six years.

cording to Chester Porterfield, Civic Music's New York representative.

In giving the workers a picture of the mounting demand for music throughout the country because of the war, Porterfield called attention to a great ship building industry on the west coast that has speeded up production and soothed nerves of the workmen by playing recordings of Bach and Beethoven during production hours.

He spoke of music as a great morale builder and a factor to national health and spirit and emphasized how broadcasts of music picked up in the fox holes of Bataan had helped American soldiers to carry on until physical exhaustion forced them to capitulate.

Music as a spiritual tie and a bond between nations was emphasized by Arnold, president of the organization, and Mrs. D. O. Meese, membership chairman, who addressed the workers. Arnold expressed appreciation to Mrs. Meese, Mrs. Stanley Richardson, headquarters chairman, and all others participating in plans for the campaign and opening dinner.

The patriotic motif prevailed both in theme and decorations and also in the lyrics of a song composed especially for the occasion by Mrs. George Vawter, Trimble road resident, who has written the campaign songs for a number of years.

Mrs. Lawrence Frank led the audience in singing the number and her husband played the accompaniment. A musical trio composed of Mrs. E. D. Gibson, violin; Ernest Schafer, cello, and Mrs. George Hall, piano, played during the dinner and the audience took occasion to recognize Mrs. Gibson's anniversary by singing "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Meese introduced the majors of the campaign, Miss Florence MacDonald, Mrs. Thornton Moore, Mrs. Paul Cropper, Mrs. George Hall, Miss Hester Robinson, Mrs. E. D. Gibson and W. L. Miller.

Red and blue streamers lent gaiety to the tables, as did red and white carnations furnished through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black. Miss Hester Robinson made the attractive "V" for victory place cards.

offs, to show every single selectee by their cheers and their handshakes and their smiles that they'll be with them in spirit in the days ahead.

Or they can take the attitude that the first send-off was a novelty, and they'll be lukewarm about the rest.

But Saltzgaber and the rest of his committee were confident today that the city and county will welcome the chance—every time in the future that a contingent departs for an induction center, to give the boys a real send-off, one that comes right from the heart.

The fact that this week there are three such occasions, on successive days, will serve as the best test as to whether the city will carry on in as rousing a fashion as it started four weeks ago.

The Mansfield Senior High School band will play at tomorrow morning's send-off, and the Madison High School band on Thursday. A band from another high school in the county, yet to be selected, will play on Friday.

Park avenue west will be blocked off from Walnut to Mulberry tomorrow morning, and the three buses will be parked in the middle of the street in that block.

Police, under Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals will direct traffic.

The send-off for each contingent will be the second farewell party for each selectee, with the Richland Victory Civic committee as sponsor and host. Last night, in the biggest "going-away" party to date, 300 young men who will leave for service this week were entertained at the American Legion home.

Almost without exception, these 300 young men brought with them their wives or sweethearts. These 600 young people jam-packed the place, and they had a rousing and noisy good time. City officials, draft board members, members of the Richland Victory Civic committee, and Legionnaires and their wives were present, too, and the walls were fairly bulging.

Talks were given by Saltzgaber, Mayor W. J. Locke and others. There was an elaborate floor show and the entertainers were received with great enthusiasm. There was music for dancing, both modern and square dances, and there was lunch for all.

That party was a terrific success. It's up to the city and county whether the morning send-offs will be successful, too.

Yes, We Have No Bananas--More Truth Than Music

PHILADELPHIA—There may soon be a revival of that hit tune of the '20's, "Yes, We Have No Bananas." But it'll be sung by the produce merchants of the country.

Although bananas are still available today, shipments to Philadelphia have fallen off more than 75 per cent from last year. Where merchants used to be able to bid on two or three carloads at a time, a half-car-load makes its appearance.

The United Fruit company, principal banana importer on the Atlantic seaboard, reported it has relinquished four ships to the government and a fifth was sunk last Feb. 5.

Bananas imported at Philadelphia supply cities as far west as Detroit. As a result of the shortage some dealers are selling them by the pound instead of the dozen.

One dealer said retail prices in Philadelphia a month ago ranged from 19 to 24 cents a dozen, depending on quality and size. Now, however, bananas sell for 40 cents a dozen and higher.

FEDERAL AGENTS GET BUSY AS ALIENS MARK HITLER BIRTHDAY

(By International News Service)

NEWARK, N. J.—A force of 150 federal agents, timing their forays to coincide with German-American parties celebrating the 53rd birthday of Adolf Hitler, staged a series of lightning raids throughout the state today and took scores of enemy aliens into custody.

E. E. Conroy, head of the Newark office of the federal bureau of investigation, said the homes of 30 other suspects were placed under scrutiny.

"The raids are the result of the surveillance of the known leaders of the German movement in New Jersey," Conroy declared.

One of the places raided was the City Hall tavern in Union City where August Klapprot, described by federal agents as the former eastern divisional leader of the German-American bund, was questioned. Also questioned was Rev. John C. Fitting, North Bergen, former secretary of the Hudson branch of the bund.

The federal agents, whose raids encompassed 40 cities and towns including Atlantic City, Hoboken, and Jersey City as well as communities located in New Jersey's highly industralized centers, netted various articles of contraband. Among the contraband confiscated were several short wave radio sets, a storm trooper uniform, a rifle, ammunition, and quantities of German money.

and April 14, and that Japanese underseas raiders in the same period had sunk 22 ships off the Pacific coast.

Russian campaign — Soviet parachute troops, described as strong enough to free German-occupied villages and "hold them against all counterattacks," were reported landing behind Nazi lines, while the Red army also reported gains on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts.

Soviet dispatches said Russian troops in the Leningrad sector had captured 17 Nazi strongholds in throwing back the German 217th division.

A Red army communique declared that 1,500 German planes had been destroyed by Russian fliers and anti-aircraft batteries from March 1 to April 14, and other Soviet accounts said Red air squadrons had shot down 15 German planes in a battle over the Arctic port of Murmansk.

On the central front, where the Russians have been slowly closing a giant pincers around the German "escape corridor" from Moscow, the Soviet radio reported the capture of an important point of resistance, with 1,300 Nazis killed in 48 hours of heavy fighting.

Advices reaching London yesterday said the Russians were within artillery range of Smolensk, key German base 230 miles west of Moscow.

Hitler's field headquarters reported that German troops in the central front had "annihilated" a trapped Russian force, and said the Vienna 34th infantry division had beaten off numerically superior Red army units "after weeks of heavy fighting."

North African front—British headquarters announced that clearing weather brought a resumption of "normal patrol activities."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Every Friday night a bunch of us fellows get together over at Bill Webster's place. We wouldn't miss those weekly get-togethers for anything.

There are seven in the group—Bill Webster, Judge Cunningham, Pete Swanson, Old Doc McGinnis the dentist, and young Doc Mitchell the M.D., the government man Bob Newcomb, and myself.

* * *

We don't play cards. We don't sing or carry on.

We just sit quietly and talk—and drink a glass or two of beer.

I guess we discuss just about everything under the sun—politics, business, family affairs, music, farming, hunting, fishing, and what not.

But mostly we like to chew the fat about life's experience and a man's philosophy in these times.

* * *

To sort of help out the conversation, we've found mellow beer particularly relaxing. Every one of us likes the tangy taste of beer... and now and then Judge Cunningham insists on ale for everybody.

You mightn't think that just settin' and talkin' would be so much fun. But it is. Particularly when a man begins to get around to the age of reason. Like us.

* * *

And it's wonderful how a few glasses of good beer help bring out good talk and good sense when men get together. There's something peaceful and friendly and human about beer that brings out the best in a man.

They call beer the "beverage of moderation." That "moderation" idea is good philosophy... maybe that's why good beer and good fellowship go together so well.

* * *

Seems to me there ought to be more of this quiet talk over a glass of beer. It sure straightens out a man in his thinking.

Anyhow, men ought to get together and be friends. That's the way we were made. Why not try it more often—all of you?

SHELBY TURNS DOWN NEW GAS RATE PROPOSAL

Special Council Committee Rejects Proposed Rate Increase.

SHELBY—City council's special gas rate committee last night turned down an Ohio Fuel Gas company proposal which would have boosted rates here two cents per thousand on the basis of 5,000 feet.

Under terms of the two-year proposal the 5,000-foot consumer would have paid 71 cents per thousand as compared with 69 cents per thousand now being collected under terms of a contract which expired last year.

The Gas company's proposal set up a rate of 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 6 cents a 100 cubic feet for next 1,500 cubic feet, 5½ cents per 100 cubic feet for next 98,000 cubic feet and 5 cents a 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 100,000 cubic feet.

An explanation for an increase in rates will be made by officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas company at an informal meeting of councilmen and city officials here Thursday night at the city hall. Other questions will be answered at that time by the gas company officials.

The present rates which expired last year continue in effect until a new ordinance is approved by city council.

An ordinance regulating picketing in the city was approved by council Monday night.

The ordinance limits the number of picketers at each entrance of business places to two and prohibits the picketing of a private residence.

Under the ordinance, a person desiring to picket must register at the police department here and receive an identification badge.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1942.

America's slogan has become "Production for Victory"—instead of "Business As Usual."

Another waste of time is trying to decide what kind of a car you would buy this year—if there were any.

There is a German proverb, "mitgefangen, mitgehangen"—caught together, hanged together. It means that people must be judged by their associates, or in the case of nations, by the rulers they tolerate.

Carrying War To the Enemy

WHEN American bombers travel over Japanese cities to carry death and destruction to the people of that island empire there is a feeling of satisfaction in the recollection that it was in 1923, rather than now, that the United States acted toward Japan in a way that gave better expression to preferences of this country.

It was on September 1, 1923, that a devastating earthquake visited Japan, with fires and tidal waves accompanying it. Tokyo and Yokohama districts suffered heavily and the total loss of life was 99,331.

With the first word of the disaster the American Red Cross sprang into action to provide money and supplies to be sent to Japan to relieve suffering and to aid in rehabilitation in the affected areas, several million dollars being willingly contributed to that worthy cause.

It was in this action that the people of America expressed their real feelings, rather than in the acts of war which are now in progress and which must continue until such aggression as is being carried on by the Axis nations has been stopped by superior military might.

However much regret may be felt over the necessity of engaging in a ruthless war against nations with which the United States would prefer to have remained at peace, the acts of leaders of these nations have been such that no other course could be taken, and there must be reciprocation in the methods of warfare they have adopted.

The initial raids over Japanese cities were no more than a foretaste of what must come before the ambitious militarists of that country are beaten into submission—which will be no easy task.

There is evidence on many fronts, and in many forms, that the Allied war machine is beginning to move in a more effective way than was thought possible a few weeks ago.

Nearly every day since the coming of spring weather there have been reports of larger and bolder operations. The aerial war is being carried by Britain into Germany and her occupied territories on a scale matching anything of the kind since Dunkirk. The Russians are not only holding their vast front but forcing the fight. China, rich in man-power and courage but poor in equipment, is doing well with what she has. Naturally the thing of foremost interest and satisfaction in this country just now is the coming of war industry into big production and the resultant military activity on important fronts.

Impetus To Civilian Defense

DECISION to allocate $2,000,000 of surplus state funds to counties, to aid in financing civilian defense, is in accord with common sense views on this subject.

Civilian defense measures, although handled locally, are naturally broad in scope and the problems involved are state and national, rather than being confined to any particular community.

While it is entirely justifiable to draw upon county and city funds to meet emergency needs it is also quite proper that the state should make a contribution to this wartime precautionary action.

With the $18,232 allocated to Richland county it will be possible for city and county civilian defense councils to proceed more rapidly with essential features of the program being developed.

Bicycling On Sidewalks

RETURN of the bicycle, as a convenient and inexpensive means of individual transportation, places added responsibility on motorists and bicyclists alike.

With more bicyclists on the streets it will be necessary for motorists to keep speed down to the point of assured control, and to be constantly on the lookout for cyclists.

On the other hand, while the ordinance against bicycle riding on sidewalks will not be enforced for the present, according to Chief of Police Bell, it should be kept in mind that sidewalks are intended primarily for pedestrians and that it is up to bicyclists to exercise care and give pedestrians the right of way at all times.

In some cities bicycle safety clubs are being organized, designed to acquaint children and older persons with rules and practices of safe riding.

Rubberless Jars Promised

A FRUIT JAR made wholly of glass, needing neither metal nor rubber to seal it, but only a little paraffin, has been invented, patented and will soon come on the market. For housewives, it can hardly come too soon. The strawberry jam season, which opens summer canning, is almost upon them.

This new jar is described as having an inner shoulder at the top on which a glass cover fits loosely. Paraffin is poured through a small perforated cone in the center of the lid. It rises about the edges, solidifies and seals the jar tight. The housewife twirls the cover around over the hot fruit, thus getting the air bubbles out.

Then, as the paraffin hardens, a vacuum is created and the normal pressure of the air—about fifteen pounds per square inch—holds the cover tight. The raw material of glass, says the inventor, Glenn A. Toaz, is roughly one-third of the earth's surface, and the more oil we process, the more paraffin we have to use up. So priorities present no difficulty.

It was a Kansas woman who, by strict economy, saved enough out of a 10-cent weekly allowance to get a divorce—another argument in favor of thrift.

The report that Mussolini "has lost all control of himself" will probably be no surprise to Hitler, who long ago took over control.

Predicted return of the horse has not yet progressed to the point of rationing horseshoes.

Tall Women Resent Skirt Limit

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

TALL women are angry with the War Production board. It recently issued a lot of regulations on the subject of styles of new clothes for femininity and, among other things, it put a 27-inch limit on the length of skirts, the idea being to conserve supplies of raw material entering into their composition. For little damsels it appears that this allowance is sufficient, but the tall ones say it'll make their underpinning look entirely too long.

Mrs. Paul McNutt

From acquaintances of mine, in the fair sex's ranks, I began hearing criticism of the board's order within a day or two after its publication; so I did a bit of querying, and it proved to be a very interesting quiz.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, the federal security administrator's wife, is prominent among the tallest of Washington's matrons. She's extremely severe in her comment concerning the WPB's ukase—not that she doesn't believe in conservation, but she thinks the board should have discriminated between tall and short womenfolk.

Her proposition is that skirts ought to be pro-rated on a basis, for example, of 29 inches for gals verging on six feet of altitude and 25 for pewees, instead of a flat 27 all around.

No Cause for Worry.

WPB's Stanley Marcus, who had a deal to do with framing his outfit's mandate, remarks that he can't see what the ladies are worrying about, inasmuch as they'd find some way, as he expresses it, to make even barrels look attractive, should Uncle Sam limit 'em to those for the rest of the duration. To which the feminine spokeswomen answer impatiently, "Pooh, pooh! There's a shortage of barrels, too."

Price Fixer Leon Henderson comes in for some compliments, for doing his best to keep the cost of girls' apparel down. It's bulged considerably in spite of him—up to 25 per cent for the cheaper sorts of raiment, according to the testimony of its wearers whom I've consulted. Leon, though, is proposing a good many kinds of ersatz goods, several of which are pronounced reasonably satisfactory.

Supplies of dyestuffs are skimpy likewise. Femininity informs me that it's afraid its colors soon will be awful drab at the present rate.

Low-heeled shoes are coming in, to economize on leather, and rubber pads at the bottom ends of 'em. The taller gals don't mind this so much, but it makes the midgets uneasy.

Personally I never particularly fancied those exaggerated heels, but there's an obvious feminine unwillingness to see 'em barred.

Fluffiness of trimmings is frowned on by the WPB. Pleats and jabots are on its forbidden list. I'm familiar with pleats, but whether I'll miss 'em or not I can't say until they disappear. Just what a jabot is hasn't been explained to me fully.

More and More Slacks.

Several of the women I've interviewed predict that about half their sex shortly will be wearing slacks. It'll be partly, they forecast, because of restrictions on the length of skirts and partly because of the substitution of the bike for auto transportation—slacks being preferable for wheeling.

TODAY IN HISTORY

A force of 750 Texan volunteers under General Sam Houston avenged the atrocities suffered at the Alamo when on April 21, 1836, Santa Anna's army of 1,200 troops was met at the San Jacinto river and routed, with Santa Anna being captured. Thus was the independence of the Texan Republic won. Sam Houston became its first president.

Man About Manhattan

Flash-Backs

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I do not like the old gay nineties variety of entertainment so prevalent along the side streets of New York. There may be a nostalgic echo for those who lived in the Diamond Jim Brady era, but for those who came later the echo is not unallied with melancholia, and the resurrected greats of that by-gone era who are paraded before the public secretly resent it, though for the moment it brings financial relief from the want and obscurity into which most of them had long since lapsed.

I see dancers who were household gods 40 years ago wearing the same dated tinsel and jigging to the same old tunes. You can not recapture rapture after that many years. Most of the present day onlookers remember these people only through the reminiscences of old timers, and the dream of slim loveliness that lingers 40 years in the imagination of our elders is not at once apparent to youngsters who were not born until their pappys went to France to fight the first World war.

I talked to a man who was one of the great figures of the entertainment world 40 years ago and who had been "brought back" so that the kids of today could breathe a little of the romance of the Gay Nineties. "I am like a freak in a side show," he said bitterly. "I am an exhumed relic to be gaped at and then shrugged out of mind."

* * *

BUT the brief moment of resurrection paid him $40 a week, and though he remembered the five-figure salaries and the champagne suppers at Rectors of the old days, they were not pleasant recollections and the taste of the champagne was bitter in his mouth.

I walked in on a rehearsal of a show that similarly wanted to recapture the essence of the bicycle-built-for-two days. A former chanteuse of world renown was singing a song she had made famous. She didn't like the way the music was arranged.

She began systematically to bawl out the musicians. Her manner was imperious. Though she hadn't eaten regularly in years, the aura of old greatness still colored her imagination, and she wanted it understood that nothing was changed.

Finally the manager came forward and gave her a blunt dressing down. She stood there in the absurd costume of fireman's bride of 40 years ago, with a fine double chin despite numerous faceliftings, and took her rebuke. I think they were paying her $45 a week. Even this was a gift, though she did not recognize it as such. She felt shamed, abused, humiliated, ill used. She was.

Chinese Philosophy.

Inparel, news sheet of the Institute of Pacific Relations, prints this quotation from the Chinese sage, Sun-tse, as comment on "the near fatal ignorance and stupidity of British and Americans alike":

If you know your enemy and yourself, you will win 100 battles and 100 victories.

If you know yourself but not your enemy, you will suffer as many defeats as you will win victories.

If you do not know yourself and not your enemy, you will lose 100 battles and suffer 100 defeats.

It might be well for smug folks and wishful thinkers to frame this trilogy for the parlor wall, or put it under their pillows. — Detroit News.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall In London Discusses Soviet Involvement In Pacific

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One of the principal subjects discussed by Harry Hopkins and Gen. Marshall in London was Russian involvement in the war in the Pacific. Allied chiefs are convinced that the question no longer is whether Russia and Japan will fight, but when.

The answer to this question is of greatest moment to both sides. Russian participation in the Pacific would mean many vital strategic advantages to the United States.

For Hitler, a Jap attack on the Russian rear would offer the hope of easing Russian pressure on the western front, where Nazi plans for a spring offensive have been seriously disrupted. For the Japs, striking while the Red Army is straining every nerve to overcome the Nazis would offer the possibility of crippling the Russians before they are in a position to throw their full weight against the Japs.

Allied strategists believe that Jap warlords now are weighing the question of an early attack on Russia. This belief is based on certain significant Intelligence information, such as:

1. The premier of the Jap-puppet government in Manchukuo was summoned to Tokyo to make plans for raising new levies of native troops to reinforce the Jap army on the Soviet border. Apparently Japan has no reserves to send to Manchukuo, so she is taking a leaf from the Nazis and proposes to use vassal manpower for militatry operations.

2. Berlin has been putting the heaviest pressure on the Japs to attack Russia. The recent mysterious return to Tokyo of the Jap ambassador to Germany is credited with being connected with this matter.

Note: U. S. radio monitors report that Jap broadcasts of the Russian statement bluntly warning Japan against attacking the Soviets made no reference to the caustic denunciation of "babbling Fascist warlords." The Jap broadcasters carefully withheld from their listeners any hint of these blasts at Jap military rulers.

The radio monitors also report that the Japanese people have no inkling of the heavy Jap naval, merchant marine and army losses. The Japs are fed only exaggerated and often fictitious accounts of Jap victories.

* * *

Normandie Report.

IN ITS report on the Normandie fire, the house naval affairs committee sharply censured the navy for negligence. However, the report would have been much hotter if two members of the subcommittee which drafted it had had their way.

Isolationist Representatives Mell Maas of Minnesota and James W. Mott of Oregon did their utmost to pin the chief blame for the conflagration on President Roosevelt. Further, Representative Patrick Drewry of Virginia, Old-Guard Democratic chairman of the subcommittee, almost let them get away with it.

The man who blocked the political scheme was Representative Ed Izac of California, decorated World war navy hero. Before the report was finally agreed on, a meeting of the subcommittee almost broke up in a riot when Izac and Maas exchanged violent verbal punches.

During the investigation it was brought out that orders had been issued for the Normandie to sail Feb. 14 with troops for an unannounced destination. Conversion of the vessel was to be rushed to completion by this date. On Feb 6, Admiral Harold R. Stark, then chief of naval operations, cancelled the order when informed that the Normandie would not be ready. The next day, however, he telegraphed that the vessel must sail on the 14th.

Maas and Mott contended that Stark acted under order from the president — although Stark did not confirm this when he testified—and that therefore the president was chiefly responsible for the fire, because, in the rush, proper precautions couldn't be taken to prevent accidents.

* * *

Committee Battle.

THE two isolationists at first demanded that the committee place the blame directly on the president, but when Izac hotly objected, they proposed an indirect blast at "swivel-chair strategists." Maas frequently used this term during closed-door hearings, and he made it bluntly clear that he meant the president.

Drewry raised no objections, and the report with this wording was about to be approved when Izac interrupted.

"Everyone in the country will think we mean the president, and that is what you want people to think," he blazed at Maas. "There's no evidence to show that the president was in any way to blame for the fire. You're playing cheap politics and trying to undermine public faith in our commander-in-chief. You'll never win the war that way."

"We're not winning it this way, either," barked back Maas. "There's too much interference with the army and navy."

"You and your kind give me a pain in my neck," retorted Izac. "You hate the president and that's the reason you are trying to fasten the blame for all mistakes on him. I'm getting good and fed up with your tactics."

"I'm getting fed up with you, too," shouted Maas. "You think you're a great authority on this war because you were a naval officer in the last one. But you don't know so much."

"You don't know so much, either," retorted Izac, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in 1918 for extraordinary heroism.

At this point other committee members intervened and the furious exchange ended. But Izac won his point. The references he objected to were stricken from the report.

Republican Squirrel.

WHITE HOUSE squirrels never pass up a meal, so they came scampering from every corner of the spacious grounds last Sunday afternoon when a uniformed guard emerged from the White House kitchen with peanuts and other edibles.

"It's great fun," remarked the guard to a young man watching the show through the tall, iron fence surrounding the grounds. "The little rascals never seem to get enough to eat."

"I would say that is literally true in the case of one of them," replied the spectator. "What's wrong with that little fellow over there—the thin, scared one? He seems to be neglected. All the others are fat and healthy-looking."

"Well, maybe I shouldn't tell you this," said the guard with a straight face, "but the truth is, we don't feed him. He's a Republican."

The young man walked off grinning. What the jesting guard didn't know was he had been talking to Wesley Powell, assistant to Republican Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Back around 1800, with much creaking and groaning, something got under way that sociologists call the industrial revolution. Some scholars view it as a mixed blessing. Their theory is that there are too many machines, that this makes unemployment and misery.

Maybe so, but—

There is one machine of which there are far. far too few. It is the common typewriter.

* * *

THE government has hired nearly 40,000 stenographers and typists since Pearl Harbor. Although that's not a net increase, since some of them were replacements, there are enough new girls to put quite a drain on the typewriter supply.

Especially is this true since the War Production Board ordered typewriter production slashed. Last year about 730,000 standard and 530,000 portable machines were built. The government purchased 220,000 of them. The WPB order permits 325,000 standards, and 75,000 portables this year. The army and navy are to get 68 per cent of the standards and 88 per cent of the portables, but both have indicated that isn't enough and that they may appeal to WPB for more.

To meet the shortage, WPB has authorized the Treasury's Procurement Division to ration typewriters to all agencies. In addition to the war and navy departments, the maritime commission, and lend-lease administration are exempt.

* * *

PROCUREMENT has abolished its rule that government typewriters can be traded in after three years and has enlarged its repair shop. Meanwhile, Procurement, Budget Bureau and WPB are taking a census of the machines and considering how to get more use out of them. They are at least three possibilities:

1. Typewriters (and other office machinery) may be put on a two or three-shift basis. This would also help solve the office space problem.

2. Typewriters may be taken away from secretaries who use them only an hour or so a day. Some of these machines would be placed in a room where several one-or-two-hour secretaries could use them.

3. Machines may be taken away from non-war-effort offices (although few will admit to not having a part in the war) and assigned to war agencies.

Procurement and WPB's Division of Civilian Supply, which drafted the typewriter cut order, are setting a good example. Procurement has put machine operation on a two-shift basis, and civilian supply keeps a record of each machine's working time. Those that are idle several hours a day are switched.

A Farmer's Diary

April Weather

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THUNDER crashed in the night until the windows rattled. Bright jagged lightning lit the yard and then staccato rain beat on the metal cottage roof, deepening to a roar.

By sunrise, purple piles of tinted clouds were streaked with overflowing gold that made long vivid shadows on the grass. Awakened birds tuned in their morning songs—the whistling cardinal, the quail, the distant mournful dove. Noisy crows scouted over the new-plowed fields, robins hopped about.

I went to the barn, breathing deep at every stride. The air was freshly washed, full of lilting spring. Rain water pools were everywhere; earthworms had left piles of castings along the path. Robins cocked their heads, listened, then with each single peck, stretched their victims out.

Long slender buds had opened on the wild cherry, the pear, the lilac. Upon a distant slope, vivid green of wheat held the lower bounds while the upper portion showed new rounds of plowing. I knew that very soon, "up the slow slope a bowing team would come" and across the valley floor a bright orange tractor would roll into view.

Dandelions with whorls of deep notched leaves, rear their yellow heads from the edge of the sandstone wall. Violets bloom on the hill, slender junipers accent the drab forest with cheery whiteness. A deep, inspiring fragrance rises from the grassy valley floor that held the chill of winter in so long. The mingled odors of the woods flow gently downward from the slope and course in through our open door.

From northern Michigan comes a note today—"Robins are here, but we had a three-inch snow." From the curling foam of the last late snow to high flung sprays of snowy blossoms is only a short bit of cheerful April weather.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1942.

America's slogan has become "Production for Victory"—instead of "Business As Usual."

Another waste of time is trying to decide what kind of a car you would buy this year—if there were any.

There is a German proverb, "mitgefangen, mitgehangen"—caught together, hanged together. It means that people must be judged by their associates, or in the case of nations, by the rulers they tolerate.

Carrying War To the Enemy

WHEN American bombers travel over Japanese cities to carry death and destruction to the people of that island empire there is a feeling of satisfaction in the recollection that it was in 1923, rather than now, that the United States acted toward Japan in a way that gave better expression to preferences of this country.

It was on September 1, 1923, that a devastating earthquake visited Japan, with fires and tidal waves accompanying it. Tokyo and Yokohama districts suffered heavily and the total loss of life was 99,331.

With the first word of the disaster the American Red Cross sprang into action to provide money and supplies to be sent to Japan to relieve suffering and to aid in rehabilitation in the affected areas, several million dollars being willingly contributed to that worthy cause.

It was in this action that the people of America expressed their real feelings, rather than in the acts of war which are now in progress and which must continue until such aggression as is being carried on by the Axis nations has been stopped by superior military might.

However much regret may be felt over the necessity of engaging in a ruthless war against nations with which the United States would prefer to have remained at peace, the acts of leaders of these nations have been such that no other course could be taken, and there must be reciprocation in the methods of warfare they have adopted.

The initial raids over Japanese cities were no more than a foretaste of what must come before the ambitious militarists of that country are beaten into submission—which will be no easy task.

There is evidence on many fronts, and in many forms, that the Allied war machine is beginning to move in a more effective way than was thought possible a few weeks ago.

Nearly every day since the coming of spring weather there have been reports of larger and bolder operations. The aerial war is being carried by Britain into Germany and her occupied territories on a scale matching anything of the kind since Dunkirk. The Russians are not only holding their vast front but forcing the fight. China, rich in man-power and courage but poor in equipment, is doing well with what she has. Naturally the thing of foremost interest and satisfaction in this country just now is the coming of war industry into big production and the resultant military activity on important fronts.

Impetus To Civilian Defense

DECISION to allocate $2,000,000 of surplus state funds to counties, to aid in financing civilian defense, is in accord with common sense views on this subject.

Civilian defense measures, although handled locally, are naturally broad in scope and the problems involved are state and national, rather than being confined to any particular community.

While it is entirely justifiable to draw upon county and city funds to meet emergency needs it is also quite proper that the state should make a contribution to this wartime precautionary action.

With the $18,232 allocated to Richland county it will be possible for city and county civilian defense councils to proceed more rapidly with essential features of the program being developed.

Bicycling On Sidewalks

RETURN of the bicycle, as a convenient and inexpensive means of individual transportation, places added responsibility on motorists and bicyclists alike.

With more bicyclists on the streets it will be necessary for motorists to keep speed down to the point of assured control, and to be constantly on the lookout for cyclists.

On the other hand, while the ordinance against bicycle riding on sidewalks will not be enforced for the present, according to Chief of Police Bell, it should be kept in mind that sidewalks are intended primarily for pedestrians and that it is up to bicyclists to exercise care and give pedestrians the right of way at all times.

In some cities bicycle safety clubs are being organized, designed to acquaint children and older persons with rules and practices of safe riding.

Rubberless Jars Promised

A FRUIT JAR made wholly of glass, needing neither metal nor rubber to seal it, but only a little paraffin, has been invented, patented and will soon come on the market. For housewives, it can hardly come too soon. The strawberry jam season, which opens summer canning, is almost upon them.

This new jar is described as having an inner shoulder at the top on which a glass cover fits loosely. Paraffin is poured through a small perforated cone in the center of the lid. It rises about the edges, solidifies and seals the jar tight. The housewife twirls the cover around over the hot fruit, thus getting the air bubbles out.

Then, as the paraffin hardens, a vacuum is created and the normal pressure of the air—about fifteen pounds per square inch—holds the cover tight. The raw material of glass, says the inventor, Glenn A. Toaz, is roughly one-third of the earth's surface, and the more oil we process, the more paraffin we have to use up. So priorities present no difficulty.

It was a Kansas woman who, by strict economy, saved enough out of a 10-cent weekly allowance to get a divorce—another argument in favor of thrift.

The report that Mussolini "has lost all control of himself" will probably be no surprise to Hitler, who long ago took over control.

Predicted return of the horse has not yet progressed to the point of rationing horseshoes.

THE CROSS COUNTRY CHAMPION

Tall Women Resent Skirt Limit

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

TALL women are angry with the War Production board. It recently issued a lot of regulations on the subject of styles of new clothes for femininity and, among other things, it put a 27-inch limit on the length of skirts, the idea being to conserve supplies of raw material entering into their composition. For little damsels it appears that this allowance is sufficient, but the tall ones say it'll make their underpinning look entirely too long.

Mrs. Paul McNutt

From acquaintances of mine, in the fair sex's ranks, I began hearing criticism of the board's order within a day or two after its publication; so I did a bit of querying, and it proved to be a very interesting quiz.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, the federal security administrator's wife, is prominent among the tallest of Washington's matrons. She's extremely severe in her comment concerning the WPB's ukase—not that she doesn't believe in conservation, but she thinks the board should have discriminated between tall and short womenfolk.

Her proposition is that skirts ought to be pro-rated on a basis, for example, of 29 inches for gals verging on six feet of altitude and 25 for pewees, instead of a flat 27 all around.

No Cause for Worry.

WPB's Stanley Marcus, who had a deal to do with framing his outfit's mandate, remarks that he can't see what the ladies are worrying about, inasmuch as they'd find some way, as he expresses it, to make even barrels look attractive, should Uncle Sam limit 'em to those for the rest of the duration. To which the feminine spokeswomen answer impatiently, "Pooh, pooh! There's a shortage of barrels, too."

Price Fixer Leon Henderson comes in for some compliments, for doing his best to keep the cost of girls' apparel down. It's bulged considerably in spite of him—up to 25 per cent for the cheaper sorts of raiment, according to the testimony of its wearers whom I've consulted. Leon, though, is proposing a good many kinds of ersatz goods, several of which are pronounced reasonably satisfactory.

Supplies of dyestuffs are skimpy likewise. Femininity informs me that it's afraid its colors soon will be awful drab at the present rate.

Low-heeled shoes are coming in, to economize on leather, and rubber pads at the bottom ends of 'em. The taller gals don't mind this so much, but it makes the midgets uneasy.

Personally I never particularly fancied those exaggerated heels, but there's an obvious feminine unwillingness to see 'em barred.

Fluffiness of trimmings is frowned on by the WPB. Pleats and jabots are on its forbidden list. I'm familiar with pleats, but whether I'll miss 'em or not I can't say until they disappear. Just what a jabot is hasn't been explained to me fully.

More and More Slacks.

Several of the women I've interviewed predict that about half their sex shortly will be wearing slacks. It'll be partly, they forecast, because of restrictions on the length of skirts and partly because of the substitution of the bike for auto transportation—slacks being preferable for wheeling.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, April 21, 1922.

Surprise was expressed over return of winter and freezing temperature.

Mrs. W. L. Beckley was attending meeting of American Legion Auxiliary in Fremont.

There was large attendance at annual spring reunion of Mansfield Masonic council, with superexcellent master's degree conferred at Opera House.

Golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Pinkley, 72 East First street.

Surprise party was given for Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Kochheiser, Lexington avenue, on their 25th wedding anniversary.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Wednesday, April 21, 1937.

Safe at Pure Oil company on Newman street was blown open with nitro-glycerine and $100 stolen.

Elmer Swineford, 76, father of George Swineford, 214 Rowland avenue, was in a critical condition in Samaritan hospital, Ashland, suffering from injuries sustained when he was hit by an automobile.

Mrs. William Mackay was elected president of the Sappho club.

TODAY IN HISTORY

A force of 750 Texan volunteers under General Sam Houston avenged the atrocities suffered at the Alamo when on April 21, 1836, Santa Anna's army of 1,200 troops was met at the San Jacinto river and routed, with Santa Anna being captured. Thus was the independence of the Texan Republic won. Sam Houston became its first president.

Man About Manhattan

Flash-Backs

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I do not like the old gay nineties variety of entertainment so prevalent along the side streets of New York. There may be a nostalgic echo for those who lived in the Diamond Jim Brady era, but for those who came later the echo is not unallied with melancholia, and the resurrected greats of that by-gone era who are paraded before the public secretly resent it, though for the moment it brings financial relief from the want and obscurity into which most of them had long since lapsed.

I see dancers who were household gods 40 years ago wearing the same dated tinsel and jigging to the same old tunes. You can not recapture rapture after that many years. Most of the present day onlookers remember these people only through the reminiscences of old timers, and the dream of slim loveliness that lingers 40 years in the imagination of our elders is not at once apparent to youngsters who were not born until their pappys went to France to fight the first World war.

I talked to a man who was one of the great figures of the entertainment world 40 years ago and who had been "brought back" so that the kids of today could breathe a little of the romance of the Gay Nineties. "I am like a freak in a side show," he said bitterly. "I am an exhumed relic to be gaped at and then shrugged out of mind."

* * *

BUT the brief moment of resurrection paid him $40 a week, and though he remembered the five-figure salaries and the champagne suppers at Rectors of the old days, they were not pleasant recollections and the taste of the champagne was bitter in his mouth.

I walked in on a rehearsal of a show that similarly wanted to recapture the essence of the bicycle-built-for-two days. A former chanteuse of world renown was singing a song she had made famous. She didn't like the way the music was arranged.

She began systematically to bawl out the musicians. Her manner was imperious. Though she hadn't eaten regularly in years, the aura of old greatness still colored her imagination, and she wanted it understood that nothing was changed.

Finally the manager came forward and gave her a blunt dressing down. She stood there in the absurd costume of fireman's bride of 40 years ago, with a fine double chin despite numerous facelifts, and took her rebuke. I think they were paying her $45 a week. Even this was a gift, though she did not recognize it as such. She felt shamed, abused, humiliated, ill used. She was.

Timely Editorial

Chinese Philosophy.

Inparel, news sheet of the Institute of Pacific Relations, prints this quotation from the Chinese sage, Sun-tse, as comment on "the near fatal ignorance and stupidity of British and Americans alike":

If you know your enemy and yourself, you will win 100 battles and 100 victories.

If you know yourself but not your enemy, you will suffer as many defeats as you will win victories.

If you do not know yourself and not your enemy, you will lose 100 battles and suffer 100 defeats.

It might be well for smug folks and wishful thinkers to frame this trilogy for the parlor wall, or put it under their pillows. — Detroit News.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall In London Discusses Soviet Involvement In Pacific

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One of the principal subjects discussed by Harry Hopkins and Gen. Marshall in London was Russian involvement in the war in the Pacific. Allied chiefs are convinced that the question no longer is whether Russia and Japan will fight, but when.

The answer to this question is of greatest moment to both sides. Russian participation in the Pacific would mean many vital strategic advantages to the United States.

For Hitler, a Jap attack on the Russian rear would offer the hope of easing Russian pressure on the western front, where Nazi plans for a spring offensive have been seriously disrupted. For the Japs, striking while the Red Army is straining every nerve to overcome the Nazis would offer the possibility of crippling the Russians before they are in a position to throw their full weight against the Japs.

Allied strategists believe that Jap warlords now are weighing the question of an early attack on Russia. This belief is based on certain significant Intelligence information, such as:

1. The premier of the Jap-puppet government in Manchukuo was summoned to Tokyo to make plans for raising new levies of native troops to reinforce the Jap army on the Soviet border. Apparently Japan has no reserves to send to Manchukuo, so she is taking a leaf from the Nazis and proposes to use vassal manpower for militatry operations.

2. Berlin has been putting the heaviest pressure on the Japs to attack Russia. The recent mysterious return to Tokyo of the Jap ambassador to Germany is credited with being connected with this matter.

Note: U. S. radio monitors report that Jap broadcasts of the Russian statement bluntly warning Japan against attacking the Soviets made no reference to the caustic denunciation of "babbling Fascist warlords." The Jap broadcasters carefully withheld from their listeners any hint of these blasts at Jap military rulers.

The radio monitors also report that the Japanese people have no inkling of the heavy Jap naval, merchant marine and army losses. The Japs are fed only exaggerated and often fictitious accounts of Jap victories.

* * *

Normandie Report.

IN ITS report on the Normandie fire, the house naval affairs committee sharply censured the navy for negligence. However, the report would have been much hotter if two members of the subcommittee which drafted it had had their way.

Isolationist Representatives Mell Maas of Minnesota and James W. Mott of Oregon did their utmost to pin the chief blame for the conflagration on President Roosevelt. Further, Representative Patrick Drewry of Virginia, Old-Guard Democratic chairman of the subcommittee, almost let them get away with it.

The man who blocked the political scheme was Representative Ed Izac of California, decorated World war navy hero. Before the report was finally agreed on, a meeting of the subcommittee almost broke up in a riot when Izac and Maas exchanged violent verbal punches.

During the investigation it was brought out that orders had been issued for the Normandie to sail Feb. 14 with troops for an unannounced destination. Conversion of the vessel was to be rushed to completion by this date. On Feb. 6, Admiral Harold R. Stark, then chief of naval operations, cancelled the order when informed that the Normandie would not be ready. The next day, however, he telegraphed that the vessel must sail on the 14th.

Maas and Mott contended that Stark acted under order from the president — although Stark did not confirm this when he testified—and that therefore the president was chiefly responsible for the fire, because, in the rush, proper precautions couldn't be taken to prevent accidents.

* * *

Committee Battle.

THE two isolationists at first demanded that the committee place the blame directly on the president, but when Izac hotly objected, they proposed an indirect blast at "swivel-chair strategists." Maas frequently used this term during closed-door hearings, and he made it bluntly clear that he meant the president.

Drewry raised no objections, and the report with this wording was about to be approved when Izac interrupted.

"Everyone in the country will think we mean the president, and that is what you want people to think," he blazed at Maas. "There's no evidence to show that the president was in any way to blame for the fire. You're playing cheap politics and trying to undermine public faith in our commander-in-chief. You'll never win the war that way."

"We're not winning it this way, either," barked back Maas. "There's too much interference with the army and navy."

"You and your kind give me a pain in my neck," retorted Izac. "You hate the president and that's the reason you are trying to fasten the blame for all mistakes on him. I'm getting good and fed up with your tactics."

"I'm getting fed up with you, too," shouted Maas. "You think you're a great authority on this war because you were a naval officer in the last one. But you don't know so much."

"You don't know so much, either," retorted Izac, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in 1918 for extraordinary heroism.

At this point other committee members intervened and the furious exchange ended. But Izac won his point. The references he objected to were stricken from the report.

Republican Squirrel.

WHITE HOUSE squirrels never pass up a meal, so they came scampering from every corner of the spacious grounds last Sunday afternoon when a uniformed guard emerged from the White House kitchen with peanuts and other edibles.

"It's great fun," remarked the guard to a young man watching the show through the tall, iron fence surrounding the grounds. "The little rascals never seem to get enough to eat."

"I would say that is literally true in the case of one of them," replied the spectator. "What's wrong with that little fellow over there—the thin, scared one? He seems to be neglected. All the others are fat and healthy-looking."

"Well, maybe I shouldn't tell you this," said the guard with a straight face, "but the truth is, we don't feed him. He's a Republican."

The young man walked off grinning. What the jesting guard didn't know was he had been talking to Wesley Powell, assistant to Republican Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Back around 1800, with much creaking and groaning, something got under way that sociologists call the industrial revolution. Some scholars view it as a mixed blessing. Their theory is that there are too many machines, that this makes unemployment and misery.

Maybe so, but—

There is one machine of which there are far, far too few. It is the common typewriter.

* * *

THE government has hired nearly 40,000 stenographers and typists since Pearl Harbor. Although that's not a net increase, since some of them were replacements, there are enough new girls to put quite a drain on the typewriter supply.

Especially is this true since the War Production Board ordered typewriter production slashed. Last year about 730,000 standard and 530,000 portable machines were built. The government purchased 220,000 of them. The WPB order permits 325,000 standards, and 75,000 portables this year. The army and navy are to get 68 per cent of the standards and 88 per cent of the portables, but both have indicated that isn't enough and that they may appeal to WPB for more.

To meet the shortage, WPB has authorized the Treasury's Procurement Division to ration typewriters to all agencies. In addition to the war and navy departments, the maritime commission, and lend-lease administration are exempt.

* * *

PROCUREMENT has abolished its rule that government typewriters can be traded in after three years and has enlarged its repair shop. Meanwhile, Procurement, Budget Bureau and WPB are taking a census of the machines and considering how to get more use out of them. They are at least three possibilities:

1. Typewriters (and other office machinery) may be put on a two or three-shift basis. This would also help solve the office space problem.

2. Typewriters may be taken away from secretaries who use them only an hour or so a day. Some of these machines would be placed in a room where several one-or-two-hour secretaries could use them.

3. Machines may be taken away from non-war-effort offices (although few will admit to not having a part in the war) and assigned to war agencies.

Procurement and WPB's Division of Civilian Supply, which drafted the typewriter cut order, are setting a good example. Procurement has put machine operation on a two-shift basis, and civilian supply keeps a record of each machine's working time. Those that are idle several hours a day are switched.

A Farmer's Diary

April Weather

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THUNDER crashed in the night until the windows rattled. Bright jagged lightning lit the yard and then staccato rain beat on the metal cottage roof, deepening to a roar.

By sunrise, purple piles of tinted clouds were streaked with overflowing gold that made long vivid shadows on the grass. Awakened birds tuned in their morning songs—the whistling cardinal, the quail, the distant mournful dove. Noisy crows scouted over the new-plowed fields, robins hopped about.

I went to the barn, breathing deep at every stride. The air was freshly washed, full of lilting spring. Rain water pools were everywhere; earthworms had left piles of castings along the path. Robins cocked their heads, listened, then with each single peck, stretched their victims out.

Long slender buds had opened on the wild cherry, the pear, the lilac. Upon a distant slope, vivid green of wheat held the lower bounds while the upper portion showed new rounds of plowing. I knew that very soon, "up the slow slope a bowing team would come" and across the valley floor a bright orange tractor would roll into view.

Dandelions with whorls of deep notched leaves, rear their yellow heads from the edge of the sandstone wall. Violets bloom on the hill, slender junipers accent the drab forest with cheery whiteness. A deep, inspiring fragrance rises from the grassy valley floor that held the chill of winter in so long. The mingled odors of the woods flow gently downward from the slope and course in through our open door.

From northern Michigan comes a note today—"Robins are here, but we had a three-inch snow." From the curling foam of the last late snow to high flung sprays of snowy blossoms is only a short bit of cheerful April weather.

SENATORS OFFER SERVICES AGAIN

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (U.P.) — Missouri's two Democratic senators, Bennett C. Clark of St. Louis and Harry Truman of Independence, both have offered to serve in the United States army.

Both Clark and Truman were in the last war. Clark served as an officer in the 140th infantry, 35th division, and Truman commanded Battery O, 129th field artillery, 35th division.

Both senators now hold the rank of colonel in the officers reserve corps.

HEN LAYS A "V" EGG

RED BLUFF, Cal. —(U.P.)— The "V" for victory symbol is attracting lots of attention these days and Mrs. James Ditty wants everybody to know that she has a hen which laid an egg with a "V" embossed on the shell.

MOTORISTS INVITED TO JOIN MOVE TO GIVE SOLDIERS 'LIFT'

Richland county motorists are being invited to enroll, beginning tomorrow, in the newly formed Service Motor league, a volunteer motorized group being organized throughout the nation to help meet the transportation needs of men in the armed forces.

Decision to institute this activity was reached by the Richland County Auto club following receipt of information from A.A.A. national headquarters in Washington to the effect that the War department had modified its policy against hitch-hiking so as not to "prohibit members of the military establishment from accepting offers for rides voluntarily made by individuals or properly accredited organizations."

Frank Beverstock, secretary of the Richland County Auto club, announced that county motorists may enroll in the Service Motor league at club headquarters, 56 North Mulberry street.

"Membership in the organization is open without charge to all responsible motorists," Beverstock said. "The only requirement will be the desire of the motorist to do his part by inviting the enlisted men to ride as his guests."

Upon enrollment each member of the league will receive an identification certificate and a distinctive windshield insignia. The windshield sticker will signify to the men in uniform that the motorist appreciates the part they are playing in the nation's war effort, and invites them to ride.

Beverstock went on to say that to avoid picking up a man who might be A. W. O. L., a league member when stopping for a man in uniform, will ask for his official pass authorizing leave from camp. The guest then will sign his name and station in a space provided on the League member's certificate.

The plan, introduced several months ago, by the California State Automobile association is now being taken up by other auto clubs throughout the country.

SERVES NIGHTS AND WORKS DAYS

MADISON, Wis. —(U.P.)— Lloyd Richardson works at a dairy plant here during the day, but at night and on holidays he goes to jail where he is serving a one-year term for negligent homicide.

This part-time employment is possible under a state law which stretches confines of the county jail to include a place of employment.

Richardson, sentenced for a fatal hit-and-run accident, obtained a judicial order invoking privileges of this law so that he could keep his job and pay the funeral expenses of the victim.

STUDY PRODUCTION

LOCKNEY, Tex.—(U.P.)— Farmers are going to school in the south plains area of the Texas Panhandle. They will meet in Lockney, March 10 and 11 for a third session of study on irrigation farming, livestock feeding and the best management methods.

By the end of 1941 about 190,000,000 trees were planted in six western states as a result of the Shelter Belt project.

KINGS ROW + + + + +

CHAPTER XXVIII

The clerk turned the register around, wrote a number opposite the name. "Here, boy, take Dr. Mitchell's baggage to 217. Going to go into practice here, Doc?"

"At the State Hospital."

"Sure enough! Doctor at the asylum, eh? Well, well."

"Send the baggage up. I'm going out first to—to look around."

Out on the sidewalk Parris stopped and slowly drew on his gloves. Two men sitting in split-bottom rocking chairs just outside the hotel door stared and glanced at each other. When Parris walked away, one of them spoke slowly. "Say, did you see that fellow, putting on gloves?"

"Gloves—in August!"

"Dr. Mitchell. Used to live here. Parris Mitchell."

"What's he wearing gloves for?"

"He's been living over in Europe—in Vienna, for five years. Maybe that's the style over there. Going to be a doctor over at the asylum."

"Well, now! Government job to start off on?"

"Yep."

* * *

Parris walked across the square. At the corner he paused and thought a moment. Yes, Cedar street, that was the shortest way to Randy's house. He walked slowly, as if some reluctance stayed his feet.

He had thought so often of coming home. Now he was here. This was Kings Row. He looked east and west on the cross street. This shabby, dingy-looking street, this—village. A strange heaviness settled on his heart, and with it came a quick, keen wave of homesickness for Vienna. Vienna had meant friends, a comfortable something that was almost home — Vienna was — he shook himself free of the thoughts. That was being maudlin, and worse, it was being afraid. He walked quickly down the street.

"Parris!"

"Randy—my dear!"

"Oh, Parris, I'm so glad to see you!"

"Drake?"

Randy had just started out when she met Parris. She swung the white-painted gate open again. "Come on in. Drake will be crazy, he'll be so glad to see you."

"How is he?" Parris caught her arm and held back as they came to the door. "How is he really?"

Randy looked away, then back again. Her eyes dimmed a little. "I don't really know, Parris. I don't really know. He seems—more like himself lately. But I can't tell."

Randy opened the door.

Drake shrank back a little into his pillow, and with an instinctive gesture he pulled the sheet up under his chin.

"Drake!"

Parris held tight to Drake's hand and looked down into the deeply shadowed eyes.

"Drake."

Drake moved his lips, but no word came. His face was like a mask of thin stone. He shifted a little like an embarrassed child and turned his face away.

Parris sat down on the edge of the bed and laid his cheek hard against Drake's.

Randy backed out of the door and closed it behind her. She went to the kitchen and sat down in a low chair behind the stove.

"Mary, blessed Mother of God: Mary, blessed Mother of God: Mary, blessed Mother of God!" She repeated the words over and over again, neither hearing the sound of them, nor thinking of their meaning.

Parris slipped quietly into the work of the hospital. The place seemed at once familiar and a refuge. Kings Row had terrified him at first. Through the years of his absence he had remembered it with a sort of filial affection. It had been a shock, a most unsettling shock to come without any preparation whatever upon the actual truth. He felt that his most treasured memories had betrayed him.

Inside the great asylum all of this feeling left him. This was known territory. He was rather astonished at first to see how superior all American equipment was. The scupulous hygiene, the smooth efficiency in all mechanical and material phases of administration, were a professional delight after the poverty and sometimes almost impossible working conditions of comparable institutions he had seen abroad.

Dr. Nolan had welcomed him so warmly that he had almost a sense of homecoming. Dr. Nolan, he found, was intelligent and progressive. The general staff was not well enough trained. Parris saw at once the evil hand of politics. But he thought little of this at the time. He found himself happier than he could have believed possible.

Outside the "asylum," as Kings Row continued to call the State Hospital, he was less happy. He had no points of contact with old acquaintances. Drake had been his real concern. Parris saw him three or four times a week. Without Drake suspecting it in the least, he had begun the application of all that he knew to a restoration of personality. So far everything went well. Drake was at times almost like the impudent, half-jeering lad who had said goodby to him at the station more than five years before.

Drake was now definitely started in business. Randy's own project for the reclaiming of the old neglected creek bottoms had been put into effect. Randy was to do the actual outside work. Drake was made to feel that the entire administration of the undertaking was his own.

Snow was flying over the hard-frozen earth before Parris began to feel that he was really settling into his own place. Yet with most of the townsfolk he felt uneasy. They were impressed with his charming manners as they had always been; newly impressed with his deep seriousness; a little bewildered by his foreign ways. They did not know that he was shy, in Kings Row, as he had never been before.

In Herr Berdorff, his old music teacher and pastor at the little German parsonage, he found a friend. But visits there, evenings with Drake and Randy, and self-losing work at the hospital and with Dr. Nolan, were not enough to dispel the uneasiness he felt—the fear of returning to old haunts. Too sharp were his remembrances of his old home; of Renee and the "secret lake"; of Dr. Tower; of Cassie and that evening before her death.

Too disturbing, too, were events like the argument he had with the Reverend Cole of Presbyterian Church—his old church, services attended with his grandmother so well remembered. Cole was a bigot, he decided, and no man to be leading idle minds. They met in the office of banker Patterson Lawes, and before many moments their words were sharp, with Cole quoting Scripture and Parris retaliating.

"I've read the Bible—in four languages. I suspect it has its place as much in my work, sir, as in your own."

* * *

It was the largest funeral Kings Row had ever seen, with the Presbyterian church crowded to the last seat of the high gallery. Parris endured the penance, for his belligerence, of hearing the Reverend Cole preach a lengthy service on "a great physician who was also a humble man of God."

Parris, certain that most of it was directed at his own head, let his attention wander. He noticed that Louise was not present. Perhaps she was ill. He remembered that she had never cared very deeply for her father, probably had never forgiven him for separating her from Drake. Still, it was strange that she wasn't there, although Mrs. Gordon's grief seemed to compensate for the absence.

* * *

After the funeral Parris left the cemetery on foot. It was a stony-cold day, and the afternoon was darkening rapidly.

He stopped before the little German parsonage. He could see the warm, steady lamplight and the flicker of firelight, too, throug the stiff lace curtains. He rang, and Herr Berdorff himself answered.

"Ach, I am glad to see you today. What are you doing out in such weather?"

"Funeral."

"Ach, yes. Dr. Gordon, Let me hang your coat here. Come into my study now and have a cup of hot coffee. I always read how people die catching cold at other people's funerals."

"You're a cheerful prophet, Professor. But I'd love the coffee."

Parris sank gratefully into the deep chair before the open fire. It was peaceful, and quiet, and comfortable here — oddly withdrawn and Old World here in this little town far from all of the traditions and ideas which made the life of this scholarly, obscure German preacher.

"Tell me, you like this asylum work?"

"Very much."

"You do not regret the music?"

"I practiced all the time I was in Vienna."

Herr Berdorff sat up. His eyes were shining.

"You don't say so? You did not tell me this. You practice now, too?"

"I bought a Bechstein in Germany."

"Ach, so?"

"I'll be coming around for you to hear me, and help me again."

"Maybe you do not need me now."

"Just as always."

Professor Berdorff was immensely pleased.

"I miss you, you and the little Lichinsky."

"You know I saw Vera several times."

"You wrote me in your letters. And her concerts were good?"

"Very good. In fact she's pretty well known everywhere now, but—"

"Yes? What?"

"A rather peculiar thing happened shortly before I left."

"To Vera? I have heard nothing."

"Well, she was slated for an appearance at the Mannheim festival during the summer. She came to see me and seemed to be very much upset about something. She canceled her date there, and one or two others. I thought she was on the very edge of a breakdown, —she'd been playing a lot—and I sent her to a doctor. She looked a little wild-eyed, and talked about not playing this year."

"And you have not heard more?"

"I went to see her father. He said she was having a rest."

"It is too bad. She has really no brains, the little Lichinsky."

"Oh, now—"

"No. Not really. Musical she is, yes, very —talented. And a kind of blind genius for work, but I never found that she could think. I have had fears of her career, always."

"Why?"

"I do not know."

"She's already made a place in the best concert ranks."

(To Be Continued)

"Most products travel a long way from the maker to the buyer, but the most important part of the whole trip is the last two feet across this counter, where the sale is made. Want to know how a manufacturer can help me most in moving his goods these last two feet?"

1. "Funny how some manufacturers go to all the trouble of making and shipping good products...without bothering to tell people how good they are or where to buy them. There are goods on my shelves from all over the country, but they'd have wasted the trip, if people didn't come in here and ask for them."

2. "Look at selling the way I do, two feet away from the shoppers, and you soon learn what kind of advertising does the best job of telling the public about a manufacturer's product. I mean newspaper advertising, of course...the medium that reaches everybody in town...the medium I use most regularly myself."

3. "Now that we're at war, with big news breaking every day, people are reading newspapers more carefully than ever. The ads, too...mine and my manufacturers'. They read the ads in the local paper, they come in here asking for a product by name, and it scoots across these last two feet of space."

4. "There's heavy, two-way traffic across this counter these days, with dollars and dimes headed for my cash register and good products headed for the customers. The more I sell, the better off my manufacturers are; so the smart ones boost their goods across the counter by consistent newspaper advertising."

There, in the words of a successful retailer, is the story of how to help a product across the retail counter...the most important part of the trip from manufacturer to consumer. It's especially true under wartime conditions that manufacturers produce more sales for their retailers...and themselves...when they advertise in local newspapers.

ONLY 1 OF 12 CHILDREN HAVE PERFECT TEETH

Dental Clinic Report Shows 138 Out of 1,776 Pupils Without Defects.

Only one out of every 12 Richland county school children examinel for dental defects in the state mobile dental clinic during the past six weeks was found to have perfect teeth.

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, announced today that the final report of the examinations made in Mansfield and Richland county schools by Dr. I. E. Henry of the state health department shows that only 138 of the 1,776 pupils examined had perfect teeth.

"This means that 1,638 or almost 92 per cent of the children examined had dental defects which need immediate attention," said Dr. Wild.

The health commissioner pointed out that there was little difference in the percentage of county children with dental defects with that of city children. The county percentage of children with defective teeth was 93 per cent while the city percentage was 92 per cent.

The examination of county school children in the first three grades and senior classes was completed last week. Dr Wild said that 1,638 of the county pupils had teeth with defects.

The complete report made on county pupils was as follows. Number examined, 1,776, children with defective teeth, 1,638; children without defects, 138, deciduous or baby teeth filled, 305, permanent teeth filled, 1,112, permanent teeth extracted, 498; permanent teeth defective, 3,278; and children with fillings, 329.

Last month, when Dr. Wild reported that only 234 of the 2,754 Mansfield pupils examined had perfect teeth, he urged parents to see that their children received proper dental care.

"Now that we have learned just how bad the situation is, we had better get something done," said Dr. Wild.

HAVE MUMPS

200 School Children Afflicted In City and County.

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, reported today that an outbreak of mumps has confined almost 200 Mansfield and Richland county school children to their homes.

Dr. Wild said that 150 Mansfield pupils and about 40 from county schools had been sent home from classes. Most of the cases from the city are in the northern section, the health commissioner stated.

Children affected by the disease are not given specific treatment, according to Dr. Wild, but they are verbally quarantined or ordered to stay in their homes for ten days.

Stresses Value Of Dancing In War Program

NEW YORK—(INS)—Dancing is an excellent method of developing the physical qualities required in civilian and military life, in the opinion of Albert Butler, a dancing specialist

"It has been my particular interest in the teaching of dancing," Butler said, "to analyze and compare as thoroughly as possible the qualities of movement that good dancers possess and to determine how these qualities could be passed on to others.

"This led to a comparative study of the movement patterns of various races and to a practical knowledge of scientific mechanics which, if passed on by ballroom teachers and recognized by the public for the amazing values involved, would place ballroom teachers in every army camp in the country."

Edgar and Erwin Smith freshmen at Ohio State university, look alike, dress alike, and make the same perfect "A" grades in their studies.

The boys' lives have run parallel since babyhood. They made identical marks through grade school In high school they varied only "one-tenth of one per cent" and now at Ohio State, where they are preparing to become chemical engineers, they still maintain equal grades. They had earned straight "A" grades at the end of their first quarter at the university.

Raises Potatoes And Then Peels Them In Army

SHEPPARD FIELD, Tex.—(INS)—Humphrey L. Jones, an army private from North Dakota derives no chuckles from cartoons of the rookie on "KP" duty peeling mountains of potatoes.

Jones, before joining the army, raised 150 acres of potatoes. He dug them, sorted, resorted and sacked them, and loaded them for shipment. He didn't care if he never saw another potato.

Then came the army. You guessed it: He was assigned to "KP"—and to the potato bin. To make matters a good deal more excruciating, the full sacks of potatoes were the same as those he had labored over only a few months previously.

CITY BEGINS TO FEEL EFFECT OF BUILDING CURB

Only One Permit For New Home Issued Since WPB Orders Restrictions.

Uncle Sam's restrictions on war-vital materials needed for construction has had a telling effect at Mansfield's new home building program.

City records show that the recent War Production board order has brought building almost to a standstill. Since April 1, only one permit has been issued for the construction of a new home.

Although a total of 15 permits have been issued, most were for small repair or renovation jobs. The largest was for a $12,000 renovation program at the W. T. Grant company store. Others ranged from $150 to $300.

Up until April 20, building permits showed that $22,050 worth of building was planned for this month. In April, 1941, there were 79 permits issued for $239,255 worth of building.

Except for the month of March, 1942 building lags far behind that of 1941. Last month, however, rushed through 52 permits to put up $373,390 worth of homes.

Only $44,391 worth of building was done this January as compared to $75,825 in January, 1941. February showed 27 permits for $80,140 worth of homes as compared to 13 for $247,351 in February, 1941.

PLANS PROJECT

Director Says Program Would Eliminate Flood Nuisance.

Plans were being made today to eliminate four defective places in the city's storm sewer system where excessive rains cause miniature floods.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said that none of the projects would be major ones but that they were "essential and would eliminate the sources of several complaints."

Director Wolff said that short lines of sewer tile were needed at these points to drain off surface water which flooded the areas during the rainy seasons.

The places where minor improvements are needed are near the Baltimore and Ohio railroad overhead crossing on Park avenue west, on Bartley avenue, on Newman street near Spring street and on Ohio street near the city dump.

The director said that City Engineer W. C. Statler was drawing plans and estimates for the jobs and that city council would be asked to consider the improvements.

THIS ANSWERS YOUR QUESTION—

"WHAT CAN I DO TO HELP FIGHT THE WAR?"

Employees in our own company have asked us : : : people outside have inquired: "What can I do to help America fight this war?"

On this page is part of the answer. Read it carefully. There is much to be done—and much that you must do—to help bring Victory.

Each one of us must realize that right now the United Nations are fighting for their existence—and that we can lose the ultimate decision. Each one of us must realize that Victory can't be won by the armed forces alone, nor by the factories that are turning out war equipment for them. This war can be won only if every American pitches in and does his or her part. And this means you who are reading this newspaper!

You—man or woman—young or old—you can help win this war. The list below will tell you how to begin. Read it now, then tear it out and paste it up in your home or office as a constant reminder of what you can and should do!

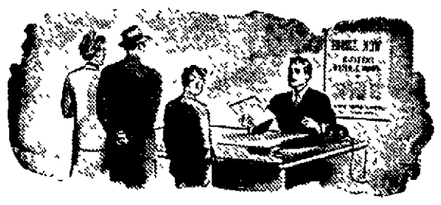
1. ENROLL IN THE CITIZENS' DEFENSE CORPS

Visit your Civilian Defense Volunteer Office. Find out which of the civilian services you are best fitted for. Sign up for training.

Men are needed for Auxiliary Police and Fire duty, Rescue and Decontamination Squads, Demolition and Clearance Crews, Fire Watchers, Air Raid Wardens, and other services. Age is not over-important in many types of work.

Women may enroll in the Drivers' Corps, the Emergency Food and Housing Corps, the Nurse's Aide Corps, the Medical Corps, and various other branches of Civilian Defense. Women, too, can be particularly useful as Air Raid Wardens.

Even boys and girls of 15 years or over may enroll as Messengers and perform valuable service in their spare time.



Whatever you can do, see if there isn't a job for you in the Citizens Defense Corps. Stop in today and volunteer, at the

Civilian Defense Volunteer Offices

Registration Hours 10 to 12 and 1 to 4
Dial 4281-6

The above information has been reviewed and passed by the Office of Civilian Defense.

2. SALVAGE PRECIOUS RUBBER, RAGS, METALS, PAPER

Save paper

Save waste paper—don't burn it! Wrapping paper, cardboard cartons, paper bags, newspapers, magazines—even the letters you ordinarily throw away—are needed to make new paperboard to pack foods, airplane and tank parts, shells and ammunition (1 ton of waste paper wraps 667,000 30-cal. bullets.)

Save old rags

Cast-off shirts, underwear, suits, and other clothing, burlap bags, draperies, mattresses, pillows, carpets are urgently needed in war factories.

Save scrap metals

Save your worn-out garden tools, metal beds, stoves, railings, tire chains, pots and pans, picture frames, clothes hangers, pipes and hardware, batteries and anything else of metal. Save your toothpaste and shaving cream tubes and turn them in at any drugstore. Bring along your extra ones, too.

Save old rubber

Save discarded auto tires and tubes, rubbers, overshoes, garden hose. All are vitally needed. They can be reclaimed for important military uses—and to make new tires and tubes.

How to save

Flatten out cartons, boxes. Tie in neat bundles; keep dry and clean. Pile newspapers separately, and tie in separate bundles. Keep rags, metals, and rubber separately—in cartons or bags, if possible.

How to dispose of it

Sell it to a junk dealer. He will see that it goes to the right processor. (You'll find his name in the classified advertising section of your newspaper or phone book.) Or give it to some local charity.

In any case, wait till your collection is sizable before having it picked up—paper, for example, should amount to 100 pounds, or a pile five feet high.

This is official information supplied by the Office of Emergency Management.

3. SERVE THROUGH YOUR LOCAL RED CROSS

The most merciful work in the world is yours now if you want it—helping the Red Cross in its work for the armed forces and for civilian defense. There are many things you can do. Here are some of them:

Blood Donor Service

Anyone in normal health between the ages of 21 and 60 can make this valuable contribution.

A fully equipped mobile transfusion unit will come to Mansfield from Cleveland on May 28, 29 and 30. Personal registration must be made in advance of these dates. No prior physical examination is required. The mobile unit is staffed with specialized physicians and registered nurses. There is no pain and no danger involved.

Register at once. 500 Donors are needed for the first collection of the mobile unit, which will not visit Mansfield again for a period of 8 weeks.

Be a Blood Donor

Register at Red Cross Headquarters, 11½ West Fourth St., Room 203, between 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Learn First Aid or Home Nursing

Your local chapter of the Red Cross will give you a comprehensive course in First Aid or Home Nursing. The knowledge and training you get from this course can be of inestimable aid to your community and your own family. Individuals or representatives of interested groups should apply at Red Cross Headquarters, 11½ West Fourth Street.

Join Nurse's Aide Corps

A shortage of trained nurses is threatened in this country. You can help relieve this shortage by volunteering as a Nurse's Aide—thus freeing a trained nurse for more specialized duties. You will be given a short hospital course which will qualify you to take over many of the duties now performed by registered nurses. Any woman between the ages of 18 and 50 with a high school education, is eligible. Apply in person at Red Cross Headquarters, 11½ West Fourth Street.

Volunteer For the Production Corps

Even if you can devote but a fraction of your time, the Red Cross will welcome your services in making surgical dressings and other articles required by the Army and Navy.

Support Your Red Cross — There is Something You Can Do — Do It Today!

4. HERE ARE OTHER WAYS TO HELP

For Women:

CHILD CARE—In many localities local day nurseries for the children of defense workers, and other services for children, need volunteer help. Community health and welfare programs may also need such assistance. Call your Civilian Defense Volunteer Office and offer your aid.

RECREATION—No home is too rich or too poor to help in offering recreation to the men of our armed services or workers in war production. This is especially important in localities near camps, naval bases, and war plants. Call the Recreation Committee of your Local Defense Council and learn what you can do.

For Men and Women:

INVENTORS—Have you a practical idea for a new war weapon or for a defense against an old one? The "National Inventors' Council," headed by several of America's greatest scientists and engineers, has been established by the Government. If you feel that your idea or plan, however untried it may be, would aid American Victory, submit it in writing to "National Inventors' Council, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C."

For Boys and Girls:

LIBRARY SERVICE—Your local public library needs help in collecting books and magazines for the soldiers and sailors. For further information dial 2271-6.

JUNIOR RED CROSS—Every boy and girl of school age can take an active part in the important work which this organization is sponsoring. If you are not already a member, apply today to your teacher.

For Everybody:

NO GOSSIP!—Enemy sympathizers, spies, and foreign agents in America are eager for every precious bit of information they can use against us. Careless statements on any phase of war activities may cost the life of an American soldier. Unconfirmed rumors should not be passed along. Don't give currency to scare stuff. Don't gossip.

5. BUY WAR STAMPS AND BONDS

War costs run into billions. A big bomber costs $220,000; a fast fighter, $70,000; a light tank, $20,000. Millions of dollars more are needed for ships and guns and trucks and food.

Your dimes, quarters, and dollars, invested in War Stamps and Bonds now, will make it possible for American fighting forces to out-fly, outshoot, and out-bomb the best the enemy can offer. You Can't let them down!

Buy bonds and stamps at banks, postoffices, retailers, or other authorized agencies—or better still, ask your employer to do what thousands of companies have done: arrange for weekly or monthly payroll deductions. It's the convenient way. Remember, in ten years, Uncle Sam repays you $25.00 for the $18.75 you lend him oday.

6. ENLIST IN THE NATIONAL NUTRITION PROGRAM

Food Can Build More Bombers

During a single recent month in American industries alone, 3,200,000 man-days of work were lost because of illness. This labor could have built 2 heavy cruisers, or 448 medium bombers or 3,200 light tanks.

America can't afford such a loss and doesn't need to. Improper diet is far too often a factor in causing illness. The problem frequently is not lack of sufficient food, but lack of the right kind of food.

Start today to make sure that every member of your family gets a properly balanced diet every day. You can do so even on a modest budget. The two important things are: (1) to see that your family gets more milk, more fruit, more green vegetables; (2) to make sure that proper cooking methods preserve the vitamin content.

The Richland County Nutritional Committee, working with the Local Defense Council, is offering courses which consist of a series of 10 weekly classes. You may enroll individually, or arrangements can be made to have these classes conducted for existing clubs or groups. Mrs. W. B. Ford, who heads the committee in charge of this important program will accept individual or group enrollments by phone—Dial 5284-6.

Note to Westinghouse Employees

The nutritional program sponsored by Mrs. Julia Kiene is a further service available to you. All Westinghouse homemakers are urged to attend the next meeting of the "Health for Victory" club which will be held in the Westinghouse auditorium on Wednesday, April 29th.

7. WORK HARD AT YOUR JOB—WHATEVER IT IS!

No matter what job is yours today—work harder and accomplish more than you ever have before! Whether you are an emplyee of an office or factory, or the person responsible for the running of a home, you can do your bit toward winning this war by being diligent and careful at any job you undertake!

GOP Discards Its Isolationist Policy

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT M'KENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

The world-wide mystery has developed out of the bombing of Japan by warplanes the Nipponese identify as American, but haven't the foggiest notion where the machines came from, is the best possible illustration of why military information frequently is withheld.

You wouldn't believe it possible that a fleet of warplanes could bomb Japan without knowing almost immediately what bases they came from.

Yet on this fourth day since the assault, Japanese still are squinting at the skies in all directions, in an effort to solve this nerve-torturing puzzle which has kept them sounding air-raid warnings right up to today.

Even our own people have been dependent on Japan for news of this sensational event. The Japs say the planes come from aircraft carriers, but they have contradicted themselves so many times it's patent they've been lying like troopers in an effort to get Washington to talk and give away the show.

London newspapers think the planes came from the Aleutian islands, laid their eggs over the mikado's preserves, and then flew on China. An Italian paper guessed they came from Soviet Russia.

But nobody has known just what has happened—except the people responsible for the raid. And it doesn't take great perspicacity to see how valuable all this mystery is to the raiders. It gave them a chance to reach their bases safely, and if those bases happened to be aircraft carriers it has given the ships an opportunity to get out of danger.

So long as the enemy doesn't learn how this coup was executed, the same plan can be used again. Then there is a further advantage of silence: It's a great breeder of war-nerves among the enemy. Indications are that a wide section of the Nipponese population is suffering from a new malady which we hope will become famous as "Japanese jitters."

From the military standpoint this raid is likely to have the effect of tying up warplanes and warships for home protection at a crucial moment when the Japs need this equipment for their various offensives.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I UNDERSTAND that when Somerset Maugham's novel, "The Moon and Sixpence," reaches the celluloid as a talking flicker, the movie moguls will offer theater exhibitors two endings to choose from: one which the her- marries a white girl, and one which finds him mated to his Polynesian sweetheart.

Kilgallen

This experiment appeals to me, in fact I intend to see both versions, but, quite apart from the Maugham story, it seems to me that this notion of the double ending opens up a new vista for Hollywood films of all kinds.

When the Warner Brothers, for example, make their next gangster picture, they might dish up two endings: one with the baddies dying in the alley, for proper-minded folks; the other with all the good characters winding up behind the eight-ball, for those patrons who enjoy seeing virtue get a kick in the shins every now and then. An M-G-M triangle comedy could offer two, even three possible versions, with Joan Crawford marrying Robert Taylor in the first, Clark Gable in the second and an unidentified bit player in the third.

Paramount could not itself some added revenue by having alternate endings for one of those football epics. In ending A, old State U. wins the big game by a last-minute touchdown. In ending B, old State U. loses the big game 85-0. I'd certainly enjoy seeing that one.

Who knows but this scheme may be Hollywood's way of eliminating double pictures, with the extra endings shown in sequence, and taking the place of the second picture on the program.

You take it from there, Darryl.

Jessica Tandy, currently to be seen in "Yesterday's Magic," is a lovely and luminous actress if I ever saw one. Certainly she's the most exciting young actress in the theater today . . . Funny, but I haven't missed Broadway Rose at all since the gendarmerie brushed her from the Broadway scene. Wonder if Abe Lyman does?

I hear Hildegrade has acquired Thomas Hart Benton's painting, "Sunset." Now she's joined the ranks of such famous art collectors as Edward G. Robinson, James Cagney, Billy Rose and Cecil B. DeMille . . . I have an irresistible urge to browse in a bookshop, or a friend's library, or any place where two or more books are gathered together. Volumes side by side in a room are a terrible distraction — the most reading matter I permit myself in a room where I work is one engagement book—large; one dictionary—small.

You realize the delicious ironies of life and the freedom of sphere enjoyed by the younger generation when you reflect that Eugene O'Neill, high in his ivory tower inscribing his beautiful, rich, important words for posterity, is the father of the gay, giddy and charmingly extrovert young woman who won a prize for being what nightclub society calls the "Number One Debbie" . . . Although Sherman Billingsley has objected—to the point of going to court—to the use of the name "Stork Club" by any competitor in any town in the nation, I don't think he'll be angry when he finds out that the soldiers in Iceland call their recreation hall the Stork club . . . An impertinent reader from Brooklyn asks: "What are your vices, Miss K?" Well, offhand I would say my vices are vichysoisse, conversation, procrastination, staying up late and buying things. What things? Doesn't matter—anything from a chair to a powderpuff, anything from a hat to an automobile, just as long as I buy. I could probably think up more if you gave me five minutes.

* * *

Add things I miss: Bon voyage parties on Europe-bound liners. . . . It seems to me if Sam Goldwyn is smart he'll release the Lou Gehrig picture, "Pride of the Yankees," right at the time when excitement (not my excitement), but everybody else's over the hottest baseball teams is at the fever mark . . . It may not be long before everybody in the country is dressing, at least during the summer, with the same exuberant display of color and odd informality that now characterizes Hollywood fashions. With defense work and travel curtailment forcing Americans to forego their vacations, the wearing of casual clothes now reserved for summer resorts may easily transfer itself to the big cities. Wouldn't surprise me to see the boys go in for open-at-the-throat shirts and sky blue trousers; the girls, slacks on the city pavements. It would horrify me a little, but it wouldn't surprise me.

APPROVE PLAN TO SUE OVER NORMANDIE FIRE

Committee Members in Accord on Navy Recommendations to Seek Damages.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Members of the house naval affairs committee who investigated the burning of the former French luxury liner Normandie were in "hearty accord" today with the navy's recommendation that damage proceedings be instituted against the Robins Dry Dock and Repair company, incorporated.

The company was converting the ship into a troop transport—the U. S. S. Lafayette—when she burned and capsized at New York pier on Feb. 9. There have been two other minor fires since then. She still rests on her side in the Hudson river.

A naval court of inquiry made public its report last night. It discounted the possibility of sabotage and charged that "gross carelessness and utter violation of rules of common sense" by the company's employes was the "direct and sole cause" of the fire.

It charged that the Robins company failed to comply with the terms of its conversion contract by failing to have extinguishers, connected ready-for-use fire hose or even firewaters present when a blow torch was used in the main lounge.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, commenting on the report, said a coast guard officer and a naval reserve officer had failed in their duty of insuring the ship's security, but added that because of mitigating circumstances no disciplinary action will be taken. However, the inquiry court's report will be placed before any selection board that might in the future consider the men for promotion.

Chairman Patrick H. Drewry, (D., Va.) of the house naval affairs subcommittee which reported last week that the fire was "directly attributable to carelessness and lack of proper supervision," said the navy had gone a step beyond his own committee to recommend damage proceedings and "the facts would appear to justify the navy recommendations." Other committee members approved the action.

Under a provision of the conversion contract the Robins company is liable for damages not to exceed $300,000. That represents a small part of the value of the gigantic lines—$60,000,000.

BOARD EXTENDS TEACHER RULES

Training Requirements, First Adopted for Year, to Last Until War's Over.

The Mansfield board of education ruling easing the training requirements for teachers was extended last night for the duration of the war.

Previously the board had voted to relax the requirements for this year only. The training regulation required all teachers to obtain at least six units of college credits beyond their degree every five years.

It was pointed out last night by Supt. W. L. Miller that war conditions might make it difficult for some teachers to attend college regularly in the summer.

He added, however, that the board's action would not prevent teachers who are able to meet the former regulations from attending college to earn additional credits during the emergency.

Supt. Miller reported that E. W. Kissel, principal of the Bowman school who suffered a fractured leg in a fall from a ladder at his home last fall, has returned to active duty. During Kissel's absence, Raymond Dent, a teacher, was acting principal.

The superintendent also reported the return of Miss Edith Ross as teacher. She was granted a leave of absence last fall.

The board appointed three men to the school maintenance system and accepted the resignation of Harold D. Welsh, an assistant janitor.

Appointed to jobs from a civil service certification list were Fred C. Miles, John N. Jones, and Charles Birmelin, all assistant janitors.

BOARD CONSIDERS FULL WEEK FOR CITY SUGAR REGISTRATION

Mansfielders probably will register for sugar rationing cards during the entire week of May 4 at the city's 10 elementary schools while the schools will close at 2 or 2:30 p. m. on registration days to give teachers more time to handle the registrations, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the city board of education.

At the request of Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller, the board authorized schools to dismiss early on registration days to avoid confusion in the afternoons when registrations are expected to be the heaviest.

Registration of civilians under the rationing program is definitely set for the period from Monday, May 4, through Thursday, May 7, and Supt. Miller said two additional days, Friday and Saturday of that week, may be needed.

He planned to confer today with James Bailey, county rationing board chairman, on plans for the registration.

Supt. Miller said he expected 40,000 civilians to register in Mansfield during the first week in May and about 300 retailers, wholesalers, and heads of institutions to register at Senior high school Tuesday and Wednesday, April 28 and 29.

All of the city's 224 teachers will be available for the civilian registration, the superintendent said, and it is estimated that each of them will be able to register an average of five persons an hour.

While some schools in the state are considering closing during the registration to speed up the program, Supt. Miller said that would be impossible here because the city schools are required to be in session 180 days a year and they have used up all their spare time this term.

Claims Criticism Keeps Dollar Men Out Of Capital

WASHINGTON — (INS) — War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson today told the senate defense committee that constant criticism in congress of dollar-a-year-men and business men generally is hampering the war effort.

"We are having increasing difficulty getting dollar-a-year men to come down here and help do the job because of constant criticism and being suspected of dishonesty," said Nelson.

Nelson said he has a list of businessmen who have declined to come to Washington, but he refused to give it to the committee.

Sen. Truman (D) Mo., chairman of the committee, said businessmen must learn to stand up under criticism.

"If they were in the senate they would learn to take it," said Truman.

Citizens of Mansfield and community are asked to cooperate with the committee planning for the annual Buckeye Hobby club show to be held May 5-10 at the Y. M. C. A. Historical items and antiques are needed for the show, the displays taking the form of a museum. Articles from foreign countries will also be accepted. Don Cram, directing the show, suggested today that a look through attics and storage rooms might reveal interesting items to be used for the show. All collections will be safely guarded during the show and will be returned to the owners at the close of the exhibit.

A skating rink is all right in the winter but residents around Crescent and Andover road don't feel so kindly toward having one near their homes in the summer time. Years ago, residents of that area contributed to a fund to have soil excavated on a lot at the intersection and persuaded the city to fill it with water to provide a skating surface. Now, the neighborhood complains that the "rink" becomes a "mosquito-breeder" in the summer months and wish to have it removed. Several have petitioned council to take some action on the matter. They also complain that the frogs "ker-chunk" too loudly at night.

PLEDGES TO AID POST-WAR COOPERATION

Adopts Resolution Supporting International Program; Taft Protests.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — The Republican party discarded its traditional isolationist policy today by pledging support for a program of international cooperation in the post-war world.

The step was taken by the Republican national committee in a resolution, regarded as a statement of party policy for the 1942 congressional campaigns, which called for all-out prosecution of the war.

Although the resolution was termed a compromise between pre-war Republican isolationists and interventionists, the resolution was accepted jubilantly by followers of Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 presidential nominee and head of the interventionist group.

In a statement telephoned from New York, Willkie expressed satisfaction with the resolution and said it committed the party to "an abandonment of isolationism." Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, who had drafted another resolution ignoring the question of post-war policy, said he thought the internationalist plank as "a great mistake."

The resolution was drafted by a sub-committee of seven appointed by Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the national committee. It considered four proposed resolutions prepared by Willkie, Taft, Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois, an isolationist before Pearl Harbor, and Alexander Smith, acting committeeman from New Jersey.

Taft had felt that the party should not be bound to a post-war policy until the end of the war but he indicated he did not object to the language of the disputed section.

Other sections of the resolution called for prosecution of an offensive war, "relentlessly and without reservation," recognition of no peace except peace with victory and preservation of the two party system of government.

It also demanded reduction of non-essential government expenditures and expressed opposition to "any effort by the administration to use the war emergency as an excuse for the extension in domestic affairs of unsound economic panaceas."

'Overflow' Orders Help Production At Westinghouse

Providing at least a slight measure of cheer to the Westinghouse employment situation, C. L. VanDerau, works manager of the company's Mansfield plant, announced today that some "overflow" war production orders had been received from the Westinghouse plant in Lima.

Work on these orders will start within two weeks, with 50 persons employed, VanDerau said. Within three or four months, the number of employes assigned to work on these orders will total 150, he said, indicating that the work will continue over a long period.

Employment has been tapering off at the plant for some weeks, as production of civilian items draws to a close. Meanwhile, work is being speeded on conversion of the plant to war production, but re-employment will not start until July.

It is expected that June will mark the low point in employment. Definite figures on May and June furloughs are expected to be affected by final government orders setting final dates for production of refrigerators, ranges and other products manufactured at the Mansfield plant.

Designers Promote Navy, White

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer.

Crisp white and navy is a perennial spring favorite all over this country, whether you happen to be a sub-deb or a grandmother. There is something so smart and refreshing about this combination that no wardrobe should be without at least one of these costumes.

This season designers have used navy and white to create clothes for all occasions. So there are evening dresses, daytime suits and frocks, and daylight afternoon dresses made up in these colors.

The tailored suit and the evening dress are New York creations, but the little cocktail outfit was dreamed up in Hollywood.

In Sheer, Striped Wool.

The daytime suit is made of sheer navy wool with fine hairline stripes. The skirt is cut on the bias so that pin stripes run diagonally. The hip-bone length jacket, to be worn with or without a blouse, has the fine white stripes running vertically. The white flat pearl buttons have silver horse motifs in the center for a novel tailored touch. A white pique gilet and cuffs on the three-quarter length sleeves still further pick up the white-on-navy theme. The climax of the costume is the smart white straw hat with the brim abruptly turned up at the sides, and clouds of palest green veiling softening the effect.

Adele Mara is wearing a charming afternoon dress that is perfect for the date that starts early and goes on through dinner and the evening. It is made of navy taffeta with satin polka dots. The frilly white cotton collar and vest add a piquant touch. With the dress are worn open-toed blue pumps, a white off-the-face hat with a veil of navy, and white gauntlet gloves.

The evening dress is made of navy sheer, with fullness centered at the front in a gore of white, and red and white carnations trimming the front of the simple, V-necked bodice. The frock ties in front with a bow of the navy material at the natural waistline. This after dark model has particularly flattering lines, and is both alluringly feminine and chic.

Club Members 'Drafted' For Novel Dinner-Dance

Following receipt of "draft orders," 130 University club members and guests reported to "University Draft Headquarters" in the Mansfield-Leland hotel Saturday night. The occasion was a dinner-dance for the club. Army officers were in charge of the registration of "draftees" at an army tent which had been placed at the entrance to the ballroom. At that time each "selectee" was given a number.

Table decorations consisted of red, white and blue candles, airplanes made of gum, cigarettes and Life Savers, and tanks made of gum drops. Background for Earl Hood's orchestra from Columbus was a large American flag. Two flags were crossed at the opposite end of the ballroom and there was another large flag in front of the tent.

The first "draft lottery" was held at 11 p. m. Capsules containing the draftees' numbers were drawn from a large fish bowl by W. E. Renwick, club secretary, who was blind-folded. Persons holding the numbers called were awarded $1 worth of war savings stamps. Capsules were drawn at regular intervals during the evening.

Dance programs were called "Orders of the Day." The University club crest and the American eagle decorated the cover. Name of the first dance was "Squads Right!" Roll of drums was the signal for "General" Charles Shafer and "Lieutenant-General" Miriam Shafer to enter the room. They "reviewed" the "troops" which were lined up along one side of the ballroom. Dr. and Mrs. Shafer wore officers' caps and carried sabers. Red, white and blue ribbon and gold braid epaulets gave a military touch to their "uniforms."

The Shafers led the "company" in a grand march during which each "soldier" received a paper gun. At the end of the march the couples paraded beneath crossed sabers and guns.

Each dance was given an appropriate ,war-like name. The "air raid" began with the sound of a siren. Lights were turned off, the music faded, and fighter planes could be heard approaching. A recording furnished the sound effects. Searchlights were shone on the ceiling and when the "all clear" signal was sounded, the lights were again turned on.

During a second "air raid" and "blackout" dance, the sound of anti-aircraft guns was featured. A circle dance was called an "Entanglement" and "Reconnaissance" was the name given the dance during which the "draftees" were to search for new partners. "The Star Spangled Banner" and taps brought the dance to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Orr, jr., were responsible for the novel affair. They were assisted by Mr. Renwick, who made the "draft orders" and programs, and by Lloyd Brown, who helped with the decorations.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Sorry, Missis Graham," he said regretfully. "I'd like to do just what you say, but your father told me to keep close to you when you're by yourself this way, and I've got to do always what he says. When we get in sight of the cottage, where I can see you if I look back, then I'll run ahead and tell the troopers about the 'phone."

I could have shaken him with cheerfulness and vigor, but I knew that his loyalty deserved my gratitude, not my resentment, so I forced my voice to cheery acquiescence.

"Never mind, Gus," I told him, and saw his anxious, downcast face brighten at my tone. "There really isn't so much hurry, now that all these men are securely captured. I probably will have plenty of time for telephoning, even if the line is in use. The officers no doubt are busy."

Mess For the Troopers.

"Yes," Gus agreed. "From what Watson said, they've got some mess there! They need a doctor, but there's one of the troopers that used to work in a hospital, and sometimes he went out with the internes on an ambulance. They say he's almost as good as a doctor about bandages and things like that."

"That's good," I agreed mechanically, and hurried on to the cottage, which loked queerly deserted. The state police car and the big armored car of the gangsters, which I last had seen racing up Route Seven, were standing in the road, but the only human figure to be seen was that of Jim Watson advancing toward us. But voices sounded behind a hedge separating the formal perennial gardens from the front lawn, and Watson, when he came up to us, explained the situation.

Patching Up the Wounded.

If anybody happened to come past, he said, "the captain thought it would be better if they didn't see any wounded men being patched up. So they lugged 'em behind the hedge, and are workin' on 'em there. The cap says they ought to be done in about ten or fifteen minutes at the longest."

"Good!" I said. "Is anybody using the telephone?"

"No, me'em," he returned. "And the front door is unlocked."

"That is fine," I commented. "Mr. Watson, would you mind asking the captain of the troopers if he could come into the living room to see me for a minute or two? I will not keep him longer than that."

Madge Offers Help.

"Thank you," I said, and added hurriedly: "Tell him please that if he needs my help with those wounded men, I shall be glad to give it to him. I have worked with surgeons and nurses in emergencies. But if he doesn't need me, I prefer not to see them."

"There's no call for you to see 'em, Mrs. Graham," Watson replied, halting in his stride to give me the assurance. "The men, they're getting along fine with the rats, and they ain't anything pretty to look at, any more than the ones that get into the corn cribs."

He started back across the lawn at a brisk pace.

"I'll tell the captain, and I know he'll come right to the house," he threw back over his shoulder. Then Gus and I went back into the old professor's cottage.

Starts Another Search.

It looked as calm and peaceful as ever, except that there were bloodstains on the doorstep and on the flagged walk leading to the opening in the hedge behind which lay the beautiful perennial gardens. I went through the door, which Gus opened for me, but did not sit down in the chair he solicitously set forward.

Instead, it seemed as if something beyond my control were pulling me toward that inner door where Professor Diswell and Charles had sat bound and gagged until we came to rescue them.

"Stay in the living room, Gus," I said in tones that admitted of no appeal, "and tell the police captain when he comes that I will be right out. You can see that this room is perfectly safe for me, and there is something here for which I wish to look."

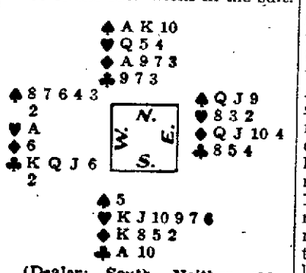
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

STRIP SIDE SUITS FIRST

Full effectiveness of some card combinations cannot be assured unless you get the opponents to lead that suit. This is so when you have the ace and king opposite each other in your hand and dummy, with the queen and jack missing, but also possess the cards immediately below them. Then a single lead of the suit by the opponents assures you three top tricks in it. Likewise, if they hold the queen, jack and ten, one of them having four cards, a single lead of the suit by them gives you three of the four tricks in the suit.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
1 NT	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠
3 ♥	Pass	5 ♥

North's slam invitation of 5-Hearts was made at two duplicate tables on this deal, and refused by South, who had to do his work right in order to make the contract. At each table West launched the defense with the club K to the A and then South tossed his remaining club on two top spades. Then the play differed, one declarer making the contract and the other being set.

The unsuccessful South next sent a heart to the A, ruffed the returned club, took two more hearts, then broke the diamonds. He led the 2 to the 9, taken by the 10. East returned the spade Q for a heart ruff, and the diamond 5 was led to the A. The 7 was covered by the J and K, but then the 8 lost the setting trick to the Q.

The winning declarer did what was necessary by eliminating both spades and clubs before breaking the diamonds, so that East would have nothing to return but a diamond at the end. To the fourth trick he led the spade 10 and trumped, then the heart 6 to the A. After ruffing the club J, he sent another heart to the Q and ruffed the club 9. The heart K drew East's last trump, leaving him only diamonds. Now the diamond 2 (the 9 was won by the 10. No matter what East returned now, the declarer would get the rest of the tricks. East selected the Q, which was won by the A, leaving a tenace of the K-8 over the Q-4, so that the finesse was a winner.

ASHLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Staley of Ashland are the parents of a daughter born Sunday night at Samaritan hospital.

Reducing by Mechanical Means

By MME. QUI VIVE

It would be cruel and unkind to tell the plump ducky that her too ample measurements are of her own making. She wouldn't believe it, anyway. She will look at you with honest eyes and tell you that she lives on practically nothing a day, doesn't eat enough to keep a bird alive. She just can't understand it. And she's busy too, she'll assure you. Works like all get out. Yet year after year the bath room scale tells the sad story. Every few years she has to wear frocks that are a size larger.

She may not eat much, but it is the kind of food that builds fat cells. She may have exercise, but it is not strenuous enough to strengthen muscles or to cause adipose tissue to evaporate. She considers calesthenics a bore. She likes sweets.

Excessive weight is not only a burden that slows up movement, but it is a health menace, and one should be rid of it. If one hasn't enough spunk and gumption to buckle down to a safe reducing diet and to do a daily workout, one should seek professional attention. Reducing salons offer aid to women of this type. They pound away the bumps by mechanical means. You pay your money and do practically nothing.

If the mountainous bulk has gathered on hips and thighs the candidate for the svelte shape is given a ride on the electric horse that canters or gallops, according to regulations. This vigorous jiggling has a stimulating effect upon the blood streams, acts more quickly than even the heaviest massage which, if employed persistently and long enough, will dissolve human suet.

The muscle toning machine is a small electric gadget that is used on the face and neck. The operators fingers rest between the patient's flesh and the vibrating applicator, so that the treatment will be gentle. This is used following the facial treatment, which is the final flourish. No sense getting a youthful shape if the face goes saggy. During reducing sessions, the flesh on the face and neck must be kept in condition.

Machine with wooden rollers are installed in reducing salons. The rollers pass over arms, legs and mid-section. Subjected to this contrivance is much like being caressed by a moving washboard.

Sometimes the roly-poly one is put to bed between electric blankets that produce excessive sweating. After half an hour of that form of boiling there is a warm shower, followed by a cold one and a rousing body massage. Flesh toning is accomplished by the use of vacuum tube with a patter attached. This electrified hand slaps and taps the flesh and, it is claimed, fat cells give up the ghost and succumb.

For Wednesday, April 22.

Although there may be moderate progress in a business way, according to the lunar aspects, yet there is a probability of the energies and aspirations being centered on social, domestic, cultural and affectional activities, to the neglect of commonplace affairs, which, however, are under a combination of hazardous, perplexing and intriguing circumstances. There may be danger through fraud, deception or peculiar undermining as well as from an inclination to extravagance and unwarranted outlay. There is possibly a tendency to let the emotions run away with sound judgment and sense. Private associations should enjoy great happiness and satisfaction.

Those whose birthday it is should be assured a year of most gratifying, progressive and pleasurable relations in their domestic, social and artistic life, with personal magnetism, culture and good nature accenting the popularity and having good reactions on business and property affairs. While business may be moderately successful if attended to, yet there is a menace from intrigue, imposition, subtle undermining, as well as through a personal proclivity to over-spend, or be carried to extravagance by the emotional nature rather than sound economic integrity.

A child born on this day should be gracious, kind, good-natured, generous, with strong social, artistic and emotional urges which may impel it to let the heart run away with the head, thereby inviting imposition and inciting extravagance and lack of thrift.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Dobra Bosko, 348 Daisy street, were honored with a party at the home Saturday evening in celebration of their 30th wedding anniversary. Their five children, George, Mike, Stanley, Alex and Daisy, served as hosts. Twenty guests were in attendance. Luncheon was served at a long table decorated with yellow and blue appointments. Mr. and Mrs. Bosko, who also have two grandchildren, were presented with many gifts.

'Victory' Gardens Are Offered to City Dwellers

GREENSBORO, N. C.—(INS)—Farmers will not be alone in increasing food production for this nation at war. City dwellers in the hustle and bustle of the metropolis of Greensboro are going to have the oportunity to dabble in the good earth and bring forth vegetables.

Under sponsorship of the Greensboro Nutrition Council, a plot of 10 cleared acres, sufficient for about 50 individual "victory" gardens, is to be made available to city dwellers who want to participate in the "food for Victory" campaign.

One need only to pick up the telephone in his big city apartment and advise the Nutrition Council that he wants to "stake a claim" to two-tenths of an acre. Persons cultivating these "victory" gardens will be required to supply their own seed, and possibly top-soil fertilizer.

Thickness and heaviness no longer indicate the strength or durability of glass jars and bottles. New duraglass containers, light and strong, are as thin as tableware and are made to withstand the knocking about and rough handling sometimes encountered in the transporting of foods.

Kellogg's All-Bran Orange Muffins

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup orange juice
½ cup milk
1¾ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking-powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Addegg and beat until creamy. Stir in ALL-BRAN, orange rind, orange juice and milk. Sift flour with baking-powder, salt and soda; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes.

Yield: 8 muffins (3 inches in diameter) or 12 muffins (2¼ inches in diameter).

Not only will you find these the most delicious bran muffins you ever tasted, but you can give them to your family with the knowledge that they are beneficial, too. Mansfield's junior high school track teams will run and jump in four meets with outside opposition this spring, and never see a single foe.

For after they've done their running and jumping, they'll run to the telegraph office and send their times and distances in the various events to their opponents, who will be doing likewise, or vice-versa.

And then the results will be compared and the victors decided. I am anticipating more than one dead heat by telegraph. A photo-finish by remote control.

* * *

Schedules for the telegraph meets were announced today by Athletic Director Harry Mehock as follows:

John Simpson—April 30, Huntington, W. Va.; May 14, Sandusky; May 21, Newark Wilson; May 27, Columbus South Freshmen.

Johnny Appleseed—April 30, Sandusky; May 14, Huntington, W. Va.; May 21, Newark Roosevelt; May 27, Columbus South Freshmen.

* * *

Just so they won't get lonely running around by themselves, Simpson and Appleseed will meet in a regulation dual meet May 6.

* * *

I don't know any good reason why they should have wanted to keep it a secret, but Mansfield women bowlers rolling in the Northern Ohio annual Women's Handicap tournament at Tiffin did very well for themselves over the week-end. But scores were not brought back for fan perusal in Monday's paper.

Lois Williams of Mansfield is currently leading the Tiffin tourney all events with a mark of 1801. R. Suchan of Cleveland is second with 1732, and Hazel Hilborn of Mansfield third with 1731.

* * *

The Suchan-Suchan team leads the doubles with 1194, but Lois Williams and Mary Kellogg of Mansfield are second with 1158, and Kate Cheney and Hazel Hilborn are third with 1157

In the team event, Mansfield Colony Recreation is tied for second at 2755 with College Hill Meats of Tiffin, while Royal Crown Colas are in sixth place with 2716. Snyder Cocktail Bar of Tiffin leads this event with 2790.

Nothing to be ashamed of in those scores.

* * *

The Tiffin Advertiser-Tribune says a huge and enthusiastic crowd was treated to a spectacular show by the keglerettes. "The women, in striking uniforms, marched in single file at the beginning of each shift," says the Tiffin paper. That's one way to get your strikes. Wear striking uniforms.

George Allerding takes his Ohio State Reformatory athletic program out in the open this week, but not too far out, and not too open. After a basketball season that saw the O. S. R. boys winning 30 games and losing 13, the athletes are starting practice for the baseball campaign out in the yard.

Now that the Braves are no more, it may be that the brand of ball displayed within the Reformatory walls will be just about the best in and around Mansfield this summer

The Reformatory plays the best teams available in northern Ohio, and Allerding is now busy lining up those teams for the summer's schedule Teams wishing games should write or call Assistant Superintendent O. F. Garver or Allerding.

MONTGOMERY WINS OVER JOE PERALTA

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Bob Montgomery, 137½, Philadelphia negro, climbed back into the fistic spotlight today with a unanimous 10-round decision over Joe Peralta 134¾, Mexican lightweight, before 6,500 fans.

Inactive since his loss to Sammy Angott last March 6, Montgomery virtually pounded the fight out of Peralta during the last eight rounds. The Mexican, who fights out of Tamaqua, won the first two frames on speed but couldn't stand up under body punishment.

PROMOTOR DIES

AKRON—(INS)—Fight promoter and former professional football player, Arthur Kauth, widely known in northeastern Ohio sports circles for 25 years, died in Sebring, Fla., according to word received here today.

Dodgers, Red Sox Lead Race

Take Undisputed Top In Major Flag Chases.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

THE Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Red Sox were all alone at the head of the major league pennant parades today, having earned their positions with the help of the Chicago Cubs, the Cleveland Indians, and some of that stuff the weather bureau says is not to be mentioned.

* * *

The Dodgers bounced the Boston Braves out of a three-way partnership in the National league with a 9-2 assault, while the Cubs took care of the Pittsburgh Pirates, third member of the triumvirate that shared first place before the start of yesterday's games, 8-2.

* * *

In the American league, the Red Sox dropped a 10-4 decision to the Washington Senators but clung to the lead by half a game over the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns.

The Yanks missed their chance to pull even with the Red Sox when their scheduled tussle with the Athletics at Philadelphia was postponed by weather. Similar conditions possibly saved the Red Sox since a second game with the Nats had to be called off.

* * *

The Cleveland Indians ruined the St. Louis Browns' chances of gaining the top spot by tripping the Brownies, 4-3.

* * *

At Pittsburgh, Max Butcher of the Pirates and Jake Mooty of the Cubs hooked up in a tight pitching duel for seven innings, but the Chicagoans exploded for half a dozen runs in the eighth, putting both Butcher and the game away.

The Philadelphia Phils depended entirely on home runs and lambasted the New York Giants on their own field, 6-3

Al Glossop's homer with the bases loaded in the fourth followed a two-run four-master by Danny Litwhiler in the third and proved to be the game winning blow as the Giants tallied three times in their half of the fourth.

* * *

The Red Sox gave Joe Dobson a 4-1 lead through the fourth inning, but he weakened in the fifth and departed at the end of the following frame after dishing out ten hits and six runs.

* * *

Brewers Take Five Straight

Continue Streak With Home Run in 13th.

(By Associated Press)

The Milwaukee Brewers, who won their first four American association games on topnotch pitching, have run their winning streak to five straight with the aid of their powerful offensive weapon, the home run

* * *

The circuit clout that won yesterday's game for the Brewers, 9-6 over Minneapolis, was by Heinz Becker and it came with two men on base in the 13th inning. By this victory Milwaukee increased its hold on first place as Louisville was beaten by Columbus.

* * *

Kansas City had to go overtime to take its fourth straight triumph yesterday, 7-6, over St. Paul in 10 innings.

Louisville's four-game winning string was snapped by Columbus, 4-3, as the Red Birds scored in the eighth on Max Marshall's single Hooper Triplett's sacrifice and John Antonelli's single for the winning run.

Rookie Fred Sanford of Toledo held Indianapolis to six hits as the Mud Hens rang up a 6-1 victory for their second win of the season. Roy (Beau) Bell, Toledo outfielder, hit two doubles and two singles in five times at bat.

Save Balls For Service Teams

CLEVELAND —(INS)— No more will ushers stage a combined foot race and mad scramble with the fans for possession of baseballs fouled into the stands at Cleveland stadium or League park.

* * *

For the duration all baseballs falling into the stands will either be thrown back voluntarily by the customer or an usher will request him to return it.

* * *

The penalty for failure will be loud booing from the other payees, for the balls are to be turned over to teams representing the United States army, navy and marines.

Fight Results

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA—Bob Montgomery, 137½, Philadelphia, outpointed Joe Peralta 134¾, Tamqua, Pa. (10).

NEW ORLEANS — Jimmy Hatcher, 130¾, Lake City, S. C., and Leo Rodak, 135, Chicago, drew.

DATE SCHEDULED FOR OHIO QUALIFIER

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The 36-hole Ohio qualifying matches for the national professional golf association was set today for May 4 on the Columbus country golf course.

The executive committee of the Ohio section of the P.G.A. designated Cleveland as the site of the annual Ohio open, to be held some time in August, but no definite club was selected to sponsor the tournament.

Derby Hopefuls Snapped In Tuneup Races

E. B. Johnston's First Prize beats First of All at Keeneland

Sun Again Given Test

Wright Colt Goes In Calumet Handicap.

LEXINGTON — (INS) — Seeking his best candidate for the Kentucky Derby May 2, Ben Jones, trainer for Warren Wright, planned to send Sun Again to the post in the six-furlong Calumet handicap at Keeneland today.

* * *

If the Sun Teddy-Hug Again colt shows good form in the Calumet he probably will be entered in the derby trial, a miler recognized as a "test" for the derby. The trial will be held four days before the derby.

* * *

If Sun Again carries the Calumet farm colors today it was regarded improbable that he will take up his nomination in the important mile-and-an-eighth Bluegrass stakes at Keeneland this Thursday. In this event the Bluegrass would become primarily a battle among Bless Me, Col. R. R. Bradley's lone derby hopeful, and Greentree stable's Devil Diver and Shut Out, both derby entrants.

Devil Diver won over Sun Again and Whirlaway, 1941 derby winner, in a Keeneland race last week, but a stirrup had broken under Sun Again's rider, impairing his chances. In a later race Sun Again was victorious. Bless Me ran fourth in his 1942 debut at the bluegrass track.

Jones, known to horse owners and fans alike as a careful and capable trainer, apparently is feeling Sun Again out for the $75,000 added 'Race of Roses," and using Keeneland, the "model track," for the job. He used it last year for the victorious Whirlaway, and in 1938 for Lawrin, which despite "cracked hooves" turned the trick over Fighting Fox and eight other crack three-year-olds.

Big Abe Simon Hangs Up Gloves

NEW YORK—(U P)—There is an unemployment problem of considerable magnitude confronting the nation today Abe Simon, the unfrocked Gargantua, has hung up his gloves, rolled up his robe and kissed the boys along Lammers' Lane a sad goodbye. From now on he will expose his chin to nothing more lethal than soap, water and a safety razor.

* * *

His decision to quit boxing was reached suddenly and it was based upon reasons both physican and mental. Simon supposedly has been annoyed for some time now by a mysterious back ailment and it was reported also that his red-haired bride feared for his state of mind if he continued to be punched about at the current rate of exchange.

* * *

Just what line of endeavor Simon will turn to is a moot point. He isn't qualified for many jobs as his life has been devoted to the ring, ice wagons and 360-pound pickle barrels. He is too big for the army and navy, Boris Karloff has a monopoly on the fright market and the Kentucky derby nominations were closed more than two months ago.

Hermanns Fail To Burn Up ABC

COLUMBUS—(U P)—The Alwain Upholstering team of Syracuse, N. Y., paced the five-man outfits in the American Bowling congress tournament, last night, with 2,910, but the session brought no changes in leadership.

* * *

* * *

Johnny Jares, Erie, Pa., rolled the day's best single series, 663, and Maurice Wellman and Edwin Schott, Indianapolis, the best doubles score, 1,239, but these also fell far short of the leaders.

BUCKS FINALLY WIN

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— It took 11 years for Ohio State to beat Michigan in a golf match. Coach Bob Kepler's team defeated the Wolverines, 20½ to 15½, yesterday.

Six players have been losed to the armed forces. These are Emil Kelly, Flint, Mich.; Jim Zito, Fairport; Mike Oana, Salem; Mel Diehl, Cleveland; Frank Bullard, Cleveland, and Dick Zimmerman. Injuries and withdrawal from school caused the other losses from the squad.

Hockett And Keltner Star

Lead Attack as Tribe Trips St. Louis Club.

CLEVELAND — (AP)—Southpaw Al Milnar, knocked out of the box in his first start last week, was called upon today to boost the Cleveland Indians over the .500 mark by pitching a second victory over St. Louis.

* * *

The Redskins won their third game in six yesterday by edging the Browns 4 to 3 in the series opener.

* * *

The Indians slammed 10 hits off Denny Galehouse, including a homerun, a double and a triple. The homer was by Ken Keltner.

Oris Hockett slugged the double and triple, as well as a single.

Hockett's triple and Keltner's home run were hit on successive pitches in the third and put the Tribe ahead, 3 to 2.

Galehouse evened the score in the next chapter, rapping a single that sent Walter Judnich home from third.

Hockett tallied the winning run in the fifth when he lined a double and came home on a single by Jeff Heath.

* * *

* * *

The Browns got only six hits off Smith. But they converted two of five passes issued by him into runs and Glenn McQuillen's double counted for another tally.

Sparkling Comedy.

Master minds learn to dance the conga and enjoy a romance by proxy in the sparkling comedy, "Ball of Fire," co-starring Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper at the Ohio. Miss Stanwyck plays a night club singer who disrupts the stuffy routine of eight college professors bent on compiling an encyclopedia when she temporarily joins their staff to help the youngest define the latest slang expressions. Cooper plays the young professor who falls in love with the singer and is also taken for a ride by her gangster sweetheart. Dana Andrews appears in the latter role and Richard Haydn and Leonid Kinskey are also cast.

Shirley Temple Film.

Shirley Temple plays her first grown-up role in "Kathleen," now showing at the Ritz. Herbert Marshall and Laraine Day also appear in the story that has to do with a lonely young girl and a youngish father whose interests lay outside the home. Johnny Weismueller and Maureen O'Sullivan appear in "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," the second picture.

Espionage Drama.

An attractive espionage agent who uses a radio musical program to inform the enemy disrupts war time plans, until tracked down by Scotland Yard and the FBI in "International Lady," showing at the Park. Ilona Massey, the continental singing star, plays the title role and George Brent and Basil Rathbone depict the forces of law on the trail of the enemy. Gene Lockhart and George Zucco are others in the cast of the play that has its locale both in New York and London. "North to the Klondike," with Brod Crawford is the second picture.

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

SELECT STOCK ISSUES CLIMB UP FRACTIONS

Sales of Department Stores Show Increase Over 1941 Period.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selective buying accounted for a fair number of fractional advances in the stock market in today's early dealings.

Ahead at a quiet opening were, U. S. Steel, General Motors and Anaconda. Unchanged to a shade lower were Dupont, General Electric, N. Y. Central and Pennsylvania.

Studied for indications of general trends in retail trade was the report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York which showed that sales of New York and Brooklyn department stores last week rose 12 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago. Volume in the preceding week had dropped 16 per cent due princially to the fact that comparison was with the later Easter last year.

Merchandising sources reported that scare buying has tapered considerably. Sellers of men's wear were said to have experienced a greater than normal drop in sales since Easter, the first appreciable let down since Christmas.

British Princess 16 Today, Assumes Responsibilities

LONDON—(AP)—Princess Elizabeth's 16th birthday today marked the end of girlhood for the talented young lady who some day may be Britain's queen. Now, her parents have decided, the time has come for her to assume the responsibilities of royalty.

The heiress-presumptive to the British throne must register under the government youth service scheme the same as any other 16-year-old. But Elizabeth, the elder daughter of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, will not be interviewed and advised on a training plan. She is a girl guide and thus already has been fitted into the government plan for national service.

Elizabeth's first public engagement was a birthday reception to 450 officers and men of the famed Grenedier guards. She was appointed the regiment's honorary colonel-in-chief several weeks ago and one of her birthday gifts was a diamond brooch in the shape of the Grendaier's shield from the officers and men of the regiment.

Both she and her younger sister, Princess Margaret Rose, have been active in war work.
